Fuel Dictator Calls Conference to Discuss Use of Coal Substitutes—An of Substitutes—Govern-

HOLD MEETING ON EVE OF MINERS' WALKOUT

Commission Prepares Report on Deadlock for Coolidge—Hopes to Force Settlement.

Washington, August 22.—Leaving the anthracite miners and operators in their deadlock, the government has formulated a double-barreled program to provide the public with fuel this winter.

1.—A conference of representatives sent by the governors of anthracite-consuming states to consider substitute fuels and their distribution.

2.—A possible injunction to prevent anthracite miners from striking.

Invitations were sent to the governors of eleven states Wednesday, by Federal Fuel Distributor Wadleigh at the instance of President Coolidge, for a meeting in New York August 28, which is just three days before the old wage agreement expires.

The action followed a day of conferences and deliberation by government officials. Both Wadleigh and Commissioner Aitchison, of the interstate commerce commission, who formulated priority orders for movement of coal last year, spent some time with Coolidge. Wadleigh later conferred with Secretary of Commerce Hoover.

That the government is considering the possibility of an anti-strike injunction was learned Wednesday on high authority. Special agents of the department of justice have been at Scranton studying the possibility of such action. Due to the experience with the railroad injunction last year, and the storm it would stir among labor leaders, President Coolidge would go slow in this respect.

Will Await Strike.

However, some doubt exists here as to whether the substitute fuel plan will adequately meet the needs or entirely satisfy New England, where such a howl was raised last year as a result of the strike and the subsequent difficulty in moving coal. Use of substitutes would mean wide changes in furnace systems, as one official pointed out, and also involves a transportation problem which would be more serious at this time of the year with peak loads of other freight.

As was also pointed out, a long-continued strike in the anthracite fields would ruin many operators, as the introduction of substitute fuels would reduce the markets in a large measure. The people could do without anthracite, one official stated, through necessity. Its use has already been curtailed in some sections of the country, where freight rates are prohibited.

Meanwhile, the government is doing nothing further toward bringing miners and operators to a settlement. President Coolidge has given no indication of what course he will take next. Members of the cabinet who have maintained that they will interfere no further until the strike actually takes place.

"We are through as far as wage negotiations are concerned," Hammond said Wednesday.

To Form Opinion.

The commission, however, spent Wednesday going over the records of the Atlantic City conference, preparatory to making a full report to the president.

TAKE THE RIGHT ROAD!

"Which way do we go?"

Gazing blankly up one road and down another the tourist is completely lost until at last his eyes light upon a signpost.

"Oh, the arrow on the sign points to the left. That's the proper way to go." And he's off—on the left road but in the right direction.

Without signposts the highways of today would be a network of confusion.

When YOU are wondering where to get a good position or to borrow $50 for several months—there are little signposts in Atlanta which will guide you in the right direction.

These "signposts"—The Constitution's classified ads—point also toward the apartment you want to rent or to the typewriter for which you've been searching. In fact, they direct Atlanta residents in every direction they want to go.

AIR MAIL PILOTS PLUNGE THRU FOG IN CRUCIAL TEST

Coast to Coast Postal Fliers Determined To Fulfill Twenty-Eight-Hour Schedule.

The two planes which began Tuesday the first trial flights of the postoffice department's 28-hour transcontinental mail service program have arrived at their destinations, and in spite of hitches caused by the weather have demonstrated the feasibility of the government's new schedule.

The eastbound plane arrived at Hazelhurst field, Long Island, at 4:14 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, 28 hours and 59 minutes after the taking-off time at San Francisco. This was 59 minutes behind schedule.

The westbound plane reached San Francisco at 6:24 o'clock Pacific coast time, 31 hours and 23 minutes after the departure from New York. Arrival was three hours and 23 minutes behind time.

Both flights would have been made in better than schedule time had not both eastbound and westbound planes been stalled in the fog barrier around Laramie, west of Cheyenne. This fog caused a hiatus of 50 miles between Laramie and Cheyenne on the eastward flight, as the plane making the Cheyenne-Omaha leg departed when the fog-bound plane was due to have arrived.

Meanwhile two more planes are headed towards each other, respectively making the same flights as eastbound plane No. 1 and westbound No. 1 have completed. Both were reported flying between 30 and 45 minutes ahead of schedule late Wednesday night with weather conditions favorable.

Pilots of the second two planes are striving to be the first to make the flight in the scheduled 28 hours or less, and, barring unfavorable weather developments or other mishap, undoubtedly will, as eastbound plane No. 1 and westbound plane No. 1 have demonstrated conclusively the practicability of following the beacon-light trail on the 800-mile night stretch between Chicago and Cheyenne.

ALLIED COMPRESS CHARGES 'FRAUD'

Augusta Firm, in Answer to Bankruptcy, Claims No Cotton Received for Receipts.

Augusta, Ga., August 22.—W. P. O'Keefe issued the receipts claimed to be held by the three petitioners in bankruptcy against the Allied Compress company, if they were issued by anyone, according to J. P. Woodall, president of the compress company, in his reply to the petition, and they were issued without the cotton represented by said receipts being received by the compress company or being in existence at the time.

The compress company declares further in its reply to the petition in bankruptcy made late yesterday that they are "informed and verily believe" that the receipts referred to were "fraudulently issued by the said W. P. O'Keefe for his own intent and purposes."

It is also alleged in the reply that the person or persons who received such receipts knew them to be "fraudulently issued," and that the "receipts did not evidence the receipt of any cotton, either the actual or constructive, into the possession of the Allied Compress company, and that the holders thereof, the petitioners in bankruptcy, are chargeable with the knowledge of all the facts as aforesaid."

The petitioners referred to are Harris, Irby and Vose, of New York city, with a claim of $340,000; American Trust company, of Charlotte, N. C., claiming $75,000, and the Hibernia Bank and Trust company, of New Orleans, claiming $90,000.

These concerns filed an involuntary petition in bankruptcy in the United States court here last Saturday against the Allied compress company, alleging aggregate claims of more than $500,000.

A general denial of the allegations contained in the petition is made by the compress company. The reply, de-

WALL OF WATER TEARS OUT DAM, THREATENS CITY

Rocky Ford, Colo., Is in Path of Flood—Danger Looms as Second Dam Wavers.

PHONE GIRL WARNS VILLAGES IN VALLEY

Mountain Torrents Swelled by Sudden Storms Crush Reservoir Dams by Sheer Weight.

Pueblo, Col., August 22.—Telephone communication with all towns in the Arkansas valley except Fowler, Colo., was lost at 11 o'clock tonight. At 10 o'clock the lowlands around Rocky Ford and Manzanola were under water, according to the sheriff of Crowley county, who reported over the only phone remaining at Ordway to Pueblo. He declared the water would make outside connections with the flooded area impossible by midnight.

Pueblo, Colo., August 22.—A large irrigation reservoir on the Apishapa river, south of Fowler, Colo., has broken, according to information received here, and a great body of water is moving toward another reservoir at Rocky Ford. The water early tonight was running four feet over the dam at Rocky Ford and city officials expressed the fear that when the water from the broken reservoir south of Fowler reached the Rocky Ford dam, the latter would break, causing a serious flood.

A 27-foot wall of water is reported to be headed toward Manzanola by telephone operators at that place, who said the water had 25 miles to go before reaching them. The river can stand only about a five-foot raise, observers said tonight.

Convict Escapes From U. S. Court In Savannah, Ga.

Under Sentence Following Big Liquor Roundup, Stewart "Walks Out."

Savannah, Ga., August 22.—(Special.)—Walter Stewart, sentenced in federal court here today to serve two years for violation of the prohibition laws, the only one sentenced to serve so long a term, made a sensational get away from the United States marshal's office and is tonight at large.

From the office of the marshal he slipped unnoticed from the crowd through a window, crept along the ledge and draining of the second floor of the building to the next window, entering the inner office of the marshal, thence into the crowded court room and calmly walked from the room and the building and disappeared.

C. Graham Baughan, an active lawyer, this afternoon furnished $10,000 bond for trial later on charges of conspiracy involving smuggling liquor into the United States, in violation of law and with failing to pay duty of liquors.

Several leading defendants in the plain cases against alleged violators of the liquor laws were convicted and sentenced today to serve sentences in jail of six to thirteen months, some with fines additional.

"When Do We Eat?" Cry Refugee Kiddies While U. S. Consul Makes Bread

Athens, August 22.—American Consul John G. Ehrhardt rolled up his sleeves, grabbed a sieve and started mixing dough in a bakery, Wednesday, when the bakers of the nearest relief kitchen here joined the Greek general strike.

With him were Professor Charles Boynton, Dr. Samuel Galvert and Charles V. Vickery, the first two American visitors, and the third a prominent official of the relief organization.

Thousands of hungry Greek and Armenian orphans, refugees from the massacres of Anatolia and Smyrna, are being sheltered in Athens in American relief hostels, and they clamored for food.

When the Greek bakers walked out they left enough bread on hand for about five minutes' supplies for youngsters who have learned the taste of American food.

In the one-time palace of Ex-King Constantine 3,000 Greek children waited to be fed. Amid the marble pillars of the ruined city of Hadrian, refugees squatted where emperors once walked, and asked in timid Armenian, the world wide question, "When do we eat?"

The four Americans, between them, expect to produce 1,000 loaves daily. They are being assisted by a half-dozen orphan boys, and are working with primitive Greek ovens where the bread is baked on flat stones, heated by a roaring wood fire.

Preliminary Winners In Beauty Tournament.

The thirty most beautiful Atlanta girls in The Constitution's beauty tournament to name "Miss Atlanta" for the National Beauty Tournament at Atlantic City, chosen on a basis of photographs, were selected at the close of entries for the local tournament at midnight last night.

The thirty preliminary winners will go before the judges in person today. "Miss Atlanta" will be selected as soon as the judges complete their task, and her name will be published in Sunday's Constitution.

LIGHTNING SHUTS OFF CITY'S POWER

Bull Sluice Plant and Electric Lines Wrecked During Thundershower Preceding Cold Wave.

Lightning bolts knocked the Bull Sluice power plant completely out of commission, broke the Stone Mountain electric transmission line between Atlanta and Decatur and wrecked the Boulevard station switch during the thundershower that hit Atlanta Wednesday evening as the precursor of the cold wave predicted for today.

The damage was estimated around $25,000 and resulted in holding up traffic temporarily in Atlanta and in putting out all electric lights in Stone Mountain, East Lake, Decatur and Clarkston for three hours.

All four power units at Bull Sluice were put out of commission at 3:25 o'clock and forced a complete stoppage of Atlanta trolley car traffic for several minutes until connections could be made with the Tallulah Falls power plant. Two units were to be restored at Bull Sluice for service this morning by repair crews working all night.

The break in the Stone Mountain line, between Atlanta and Decatur, held up trolley traffic for 17 minutes until a new connection could be established. The wrecking of the Boulevard station switch, which controls light and power current into four Atlanta suburbs and into downtown Atlanta, caused the most inconvenience to the public during the three hours it took to re-establish service.

Steam plants were called into service to supplement the Tallulah power after the Bull Sluice plant had been knocked out of commission.

MERCURY TO PLUNGE TO 60 TODAY.

The coldest weather experienced in the history of Atlanta during the month of August was predicted Wednesday by C. F. von Herrmann, local meteorologist, who declared that the temperature would probably descend to the 60 degree mark by Thursday. Atlanta, with a large portion of the United States, has been affected by a cool wave, which in all probability will continue throughout the week.

Mr. von Herrmann stated that he expected the temperature to fall during Wednesday night and Thursday to 60 degrees. This is 26 degrees lower than the temperature Wednesday morning.

The cool spell will be accompanied by rain fall. Mr. von Herrmann announced, with a fair possibility of thundershowers.

Although Mr. von Herrmann stated that the average of 60 degrees would not prevail throughout the entire week, he predicted that it would hover between the mark of 60 degrees and 70 degrees, which is unusually cool for this time of year.

LABOR CHIEF SEES WASTE IN SCHOOLS

Quinn Says Too Much Was Paid for New Properties, Too Little Received for Old.

Charging that public money has been used with extravagance in Atlanta's school building program, Emmett L. Quinn, former president of the Atlanta Federation of Trades and vice president of the Georgia Federation of Labor, stated Wednesday night on the floor of the local labor federation that $270,000 had been paid for vacant school properties in Atlanta in excess of the valuation by the city tax office.

Mr. Quinn's statement was made in discussing the issuing of bonds for public improvements. He declared that recently abandoned school property had been sold for much less money at public auction than the authorities hoped to receive for them.

Opposes More Bonds.

Mr. Quinn declared himself to be opposed to bond issues for schools or for any purpose whatsoever unless reforms are brought about in the city tax assessor's office which will insure the people of the city a more equitable valuation of real estate.

"I have figures," said Mr. Quinn, "gathered after a careful investigation, which show that the city paid for properties to be used for schools $270,000 in excess of the 100 per cent valuation placed upon these properties by the city. And it is general knowledge, having been published in the newspapers, that the authorities were much disappointed in the amounts received for the abandoned school property when sold at public auction."

Mr. Quinn stated after the meeting that $50,000 had been paid for the property on which the Joe Brown Junior High stand, in West End, where the parcel was assessed at $13,000 on the city's books in the assessor's office.

Caraway Is Present.

Former President Walter C. Caraway, of the federation, who is also a member of the bond commission, was present when the charges were made but did not reply to them.

Other important matters to come before the federation last night were the adoption of a report of the general labor day committee, which was made upon the program that has been mapped out for the Labor day celebration, September 5. This program includes the largest and most spectacular parade the union crafts have ever given during the forenoon of Labor day, and the most splendid list of amusements to be given during the afternoon at Lakewood park. The full program, it was announced by President C. W. Cunningham, will be given out Sunday.

A vote taken upon the question of changing the constitution of the federation failed.

RAIDERS FIND WATER Mysterious Barrel Proves Innocent Container.

Forty gallons of water with an odor resembling wine was the net result of a fruitless search for spirits Wednesday, conducted by members of the police and detective departments, at 126 Luckie street. This quantity of water was obtained only after much labor had been expended in excavating the barrel.

A "tip" came to the department, and the officers followed it. A pipe into the barrel from the surface of the ground led the searchers to believe that they were about to discover a quantity of muscadine wine. The officers explained the odor of the water by stating that the barrel formerly contained wine.

BAD MEMORY COSTLY Woman Hides $4,000 Rings, But Forgets Place.

Rings valued at $4,000 are believed to have been lost when Mrs. Ruth Young, of 863 West Peachtree street, hid them in her house Tuesday, according to reports to the detective department Wednesday. Mrs. Young stated that she hid the rings while preparing to entertain a party of friends Tuesday afternoon and that she forgot where she left them.

A thorough search of the apartment by members of the detective force failed to reveal them. Mrs. Young said that the gems belonged to her and to Miss Betty Brown, also of 863 West Peachtree street.

30 PRELIMINARY BEAUTY TOURNEY WINNERS NAMED

Most Beautiful Contenders for "Miss Atlanta's" Crown Appear Before Judges This Afternoon.

TO ANNOUNCE FINAL SELECTION SUNDAY

Approximately 200 Beautiful Girls Enter Names in Tournament—"Miss Atlanta" Goes to Atlantic City.

Thirty preliminary winners in The Constitution's contest to select "Miss Atlanta" to represent the city at the Atlantic City National Beauty tournament were chosen out of a total of approximately 200 entrants at midnight Wednesday at the expiration of the time limit for entries.

Their names are published in this issue, and they will appear in person before the judges this afternoon.

The thirty preliminary winners were chosen on a basis of photographs submitted to the beauty contest editor. Judges will begin their task of selecting "Miss Atlanta" out of the thirty preliminary winners this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Atlanta Woman's club.

Appear in Groups.

At that hour ten of the thirty winners will appear before them. At 3:30 o'clock ten more contestants will appear, and at 4 o'clock the final ten will make their appearance.

Judges are Forrest Adair, prominent realtor and act connoisseur; Mayor Walter A. Sims, Mrs. Charles Jerome, chairman of the art committee of the Atlanta Woman's club; Wesley Hirschberg, artist-photographer, and Miss Pearl Saville, Red Cross life-saving director for the south.

The judges are expected to eliminate all but five contestants this afternoon and to select "Miss Atlanta" from these latter Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, president of the Atlanta Woman's club, will act as official champion during the judging, and members of the woman's department of The Constitution will assist her.

Should Come Alone.

It is preferable that each of the thirty contestants named to appear before the judges this afternoon, come to the Woman's club alone, but if they particularly desire it, they may bring one companion each with them. The judging will be strictly private, and no relative or friend of any contestant will be allowed to enter the judging apartments.

The contestants are requested to appear in afternoon gown or costume that most advantageously sets off their beauty.

The beauty contest editor has communicated by telephone with all except four of the thirty successful candidates, and those who have not been notified definitely as to the exact time at which they are to come to the Woman's club are requested to call Main 0740 or Main 0741 at 12:30 o'clock today.

In event they do not communicate with the editor, it is understood that they automatically drop from the list of contestants. In addition, it is understood that all contestants who appear before the judges will accept their decision as final and irrevocable.

Movies To Be Filmed.

The Howard theater has been granted exclusive rights to moving picture films of the contest.

GOVERNOR WALKER WILL NOT TESTIFY IN HOWARD PROBE

Chief Executive, However, Will Receive Committee From Bar Association in His Office.

Governor Clifford Walker will not appear before the grievance committee of the Atlanta Bar association which meets Friday morning at 10 o'clock to investigate certain charges by Edgar Latham, well-known Atlanta lawyer, against Judge G. H. Howard, recently appointed by the governor to the newly created Fulton superior court bench.

The governor was not in his office Wednesday afternoon but close friends who know his attitude stated that Governor Walker would not appear in response to any summons to testify in the investigation. It was stated, however, that the chief executive would receive any committee that might be sent to his office in connection with the matter.

Committee Is Retitled.

Members of the investigating committee stated Wednesday night that they did not care to comment further on the matter in advance of the hearing Friday morning. When asked if the committee would furnish "specific charges against Judge Howard," requested by friends of the new judge, members declined to make any statement. The committee also declined to state whether Governor Walker would be requested to appear before the committee in person, or whether a special committee would call on the governor.

The charges to be investigated grew out of the appointment of Judge Howard by Governor Walker and were made public in Sunday's papers. Edgar Latham, prominent member of the local bar and applicant for the appointment, declared in an open letter that Judge Howard had promised Latham appointment as solicitor-general provided he would agree to a division of fees of the office. The charges were brought to the attention of the bar association and referred to the standing grievance committee. The investigation to be held in the court house Friday morning is the result.

Says Governor Knew Facts.

Mr. Latham stated in his letter that Judge Howard had been named after the "full facts" had been made known to the chief executive.

Members of the investigating committee, composed of Marion Smith, R. J. Jones and John A. Sibley, had been named.

Two Girls and Boy Companions Hurt When Automobile Skids on Pleasure Ride.

Wet streets Wednesday boosted the daily roster of automobile accident victims to 15, all of whom were treated in Atlanta hospitals and declared to be out of danger of death early Thursday morning. Two others were hurt during the day in falls, one from a third story window and one on a wet pavement.

Miss Anne Caruth, 15, of 250 Woodward avenue, received serious internal injuries Wednesday evening when an automobile in which she and four others were riding between 35 and 40 miles an hour skidded on wet paving on Jonesboro road near Jester's Old Mill and turned completely over.

Members of Party.

The others of the party were Miss Helen Kilabrew, 19, of 244 Washington street; Pete Brown, of the Rector Soda company, Peachtree street, and an unidentified man who left Grady hospital without leaving an address. All members of the party suffered bruises and cuts. They were rushed to Grady hospital by C. C. Willett, of 65 Howell place, who was driving near the scene of the accident with friends and took the unconscious party to the hospital.

Child Struck Down.

James Hammett, 8, of 56 Glenn street, was taken to Grady hospital Wednesday afternoon suffering from cuts and bruises said to have been received in an automobile accident. No report of the accident was made to the police and the child did not know the identity of a person who is supposed to have injured him or the place of the accident.

Harold Bloom, 17, who gave his address as Chicago, Ill., was injured while attempting to climb through a railroad train standing at a terminal station shed Wednesday afternoon. The train blocked his way and he is said to have started to climb between cars at the coupling. The engine is said to have given the cars a jerk and he was thrown. His injuries consist of a badly bruised leg.

Others hurt in auto accidents were Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Chambers, 370 South Boulevard; A. E. Primm, of the same address; Ernest McCullough, son of Mr. and Mrs. John M. McCullough; Hugh Nunnally, son of Charles T. Nunnally, 177 Ponce de Leon avenue; M. C. Bennett, of Inglewood, and two negroes, Henry Jones and Adam Boone.

Mrs. Chamber suffered a serious cut on the neck, besides being otherwise bruised and injured when the touring car her husband was driving collided head-on with a motor truck operated by the negro Henry Jones. Primm was in the car with Mr. and Mrs. Chambers. He and Chambers were severely shaken up and bruised.

SIMMONS TAKES STIGALL'S PLACE Named as Vice Squad Head—Slayer to Be Tried in September—Remains Silent.

Officer J. C. Simmons Wednesday was designated by Police Chief James L. Beavers as the successor to E. C. Stigall as head of the vice and liquor squad.

Stigall was suspended as vice squad head of the police department by Police Chief James L. Beavers following his indictment by the grand jury Tuesday.

Trial in September.

Simmons with Officer B. E. Moon won special recognition from the police department for cleaning up territory in the vicinity of the auditorium and Grady hospital, ridding this section of disorderly women and bootleggers.

Solicitor General John A. Boykin announced Wednesday that he would attempt to place Stigall, who was indicted Tuesday for the murder of H. W. Hames, private detective, on trial the first week in September. Solicitor Boykin stated that the investigation was still under way and expressed the belief that a number of valuable witnesses would be secured before the accused policeman was brought to trial.

He stated that he had received a letter Wednesday furnishing the names of several persons said to be eye-witnesses to the tragedy. Solicitor Boykin believes that these parties will be able to divulge important information, and immediately launched a search for them. They will be examined Thursday or Friday if possible.

Stigall was also indicted by the grand jury on charges of assault with intent to murder in connection with the wounding of J. H. Kirk and Ernest Young.

was caused, police were told, by the negro "snaking" along as he approached Fair street on Oakland avenue.

Call Officers W. A. Goode and Ed L. Arthur, who investigated the wreck, placed Jones under arrest, charged with being drunk and operating an auto.

The other negro that was hurt, Adam Boone, reported to the police that a speeding automobile struck his wagon at Courtland street and Edgewood avenue, hurling him violently to the pavement. The driver of the car did not stop, he said, and requested the police to make an arrest. He furnished them with the license number.

Car Overturns.

McCullough and Nunnally were injured about 2 o'clock Wednesday morning when a large sedan, driven by the latter, overturned in Peachtree road, near Peachtree creek, after tearing down a fire plug.

Both were rushed to the Davis-Fischer hospital for treatment by passing motorists. Surgeons stated they sustained minor cuts and bruises. The machine was completely demolished.

lished, although a pair of horn-shell glasses belonging to young Nunnally was recovered from the debris unhurt.

Bennett was struck down by an automobile as he attempted to cross Peachtree street, at Currier street, early Wednesday morning. His injury is said to have been due to his decision in crossing upon seeing the approaching car.

The machine that injured Bennett was driven by W. J. Barnes, of Decatur, who reported to the police that the accident was unavoidable.

In Serious Condition.

Those hurt in falls were Mrs. M. A. Phillips, of 382 Luckie street, and L. T. Brown, 22 Forrest street. Both are in the Grady hospital in a serious condition.

Mrs. Phillips' injuries were caused, it is said, when she slipped upon the steps from the Broad street entrance into the Citizens' and Southern Bank building during the rain Wednesday afternoon.

She skated a distance of several feet and fell, her head striking the stone pavement. Surgeons stated she probably has a fractured skull.

Brown is said to have plunged to the ground from the third floor of the White Provision company's plant, on Howell Mill road. He was carried to the hospital unconscious.

Just what caused the fall had not been reported late Wednesday night.

ANDREW FUNERAL TO BE HELD AT LITHONIA.

The body of Mrs. H. W. Andrew, 22, of 23 East Thirtieth street, who died from injuries received Tuesday afternoon in a collision between two automobiles at Chestnut and Simpson streets, will be laid to rest in the family cemetery at Lithonia Thursday afternoon. Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock in the Baptist church of that city. Barclay and Brandon will be in charge of the arrangements.

Her eight-month-old babe, Harbin W. Andrew, Jr., whose life was saved by a pedestrian who caught the child as it was flung from his mother's arms, was ready to leave the Grady hospital Wednesday morning.

Andrew, who was driving the roadster in which his wife and child were riding, suffered a wrenched back and other bad bruises.

C. Kent, of Bolton, driver of the machine which struck the Andrew car, was being held without bond at the police station Wednesday. He attributes the wreck to the blind crossing at this point.

Besides her husband and child, Mrs. Andrew is survived by her mother, Mrs. Frank Allen; a brother, A. J. Allen, and three sisters, Mrs. W. L. Winslett, Mrs. L. O. Lamey and Mrs. H. C. Miller.

MACON FLOGGING SITUATION QUIET

Macon, Ga., August 22.—Sheriff J. R. Hicks declared tonight that there had been no change in the flogging situation here in the past twenty-four hours. There have been no floggings reported since the arrest of the three Hudson brothers.

The Hudsons are negotiating with W. A. McClellan and former Judge John P. Ross, the latter in Atlanta today, as counsel, but will make no selection until tomorrow.

As soon as a lawyer is obtained a commitment hearing probably will be demanded, with a view of obtaining bail for the three men.

Skilled Britons Leaving Islands Looking for Jobs

BY RALPH H. TURNER.

London, August 22.—Hundreds of skilled British workmen already are gathering at Southampton and Liverpool to sail for American ports as part of the new September emigration quota.

Sir Auckland Geddes' report on Ellis Island conditions has failed to have any retarding effect. Faced by a winter of heavy unemployment and suffering, thousands of British mechanics and laborers are preparing to make a new start in the United States.

Employment prospects are gloomy here.

At the present time, 1,185,000 men are officially registered as being out of work. When account is taken of their families, this means that 6,000,000 people are in distress for want of jobs.

Even this number, however, does not include the vast extent of industrial depression in the British Isles, for large numbers of jobless men neglect to register their names with the ministry of labor.

Government Is Worried.

Government officials do not conceal their alarm over the prospect of a bitter winter. The ministry of labor has outlined schemes of relief, which call for an expenditure of $150,000,000 in promoting construction works and other measures designed to provide employment, but these proposals have been attacked as vague and impracticable. The government admits that the relief projects will not care for more than 300,000 men and of this number, 100,000 will benefit only indirectly.

The prospect has immense potentialities, for it promises to undermine not only the economic situation, but will exert a pronounced effect on political and social conditions.

All discussion of the subject eventually recognizes the fact that industry will receive no material stimulus, until conditions on the continent become stabilized. That explains Britain's desperate anxiety to settle the Franco-German struggle, a peace reveals a growing section of British opinion now fears that France not only seeks the political and military control of Europe, but is also endeavoring to achieve economic domination. British industrialists charge that France, by keeping central Europe in a ferment of disturbance and despair, is seeking to establish a world market for her own products.

Industrialists Protest.

The industrial group in the house of commons, headed by Sir Allan Smith, had addressed a letter to Premier Baldwin, strongly protesting against the government's attitude toward unemployment, as outlined in a recent debate in the house. The industrial group declares:

"If the present rate of unemployment is maintained (and there is nothing in the entire labor market to encourage the most sanguine to hope that the rate will be checked), this relief will be quite inadequate to prevent even larger numbers than last year from becoming workless."

"The gravity of the position can not be exaggerated. A point which does not appear to be mentioned in the speech is, the demoralization resulting from continued unemployment and its deadening influence on the workers and on the morale of the youth of the country. The whole question of national vitality is at stake."

Scotland also is feeling the "deadening influence" which unemployment is exerting on the "national vitality." Thoughtful Scots deplore that large numbers of the country's best workmen were emigrating to America as fast as the quota law would admit them. But the indifferent workmen—the men who are desirably physically and intellectually—are paid to remain at home where they draw the dole that the government pays out to the idle.

AIR MAIL FLYERS PLUNGE THRU FOG

At 10:42 p. m. Pilot Yager picked up Lewis cargo and left the field at 10:48 p. m., after taxing about the field for an engine test. Yager had 10 pouches of mail.

Pilot Dean Smith left with the San Francisco-New York mail brought in by Jack Knight just six minutes after Knight, landed at 10:26 p. m. Hazelhurst field, L. I., August 22. Twenty-nine-hour air mail service from San Francisco to New York has been established as practicable.

At 5:14 p. m., Wednesday, completing the last lap of the trans-continental east-bound air flight which began at San Francisco yesterday.

It carried sixty-nine pounds of mail.

The trip of Johnson from Cleveland was made in three hours and twelve minutes. The delivery time from Frisco to Hazelhurst field was given as twenty-eight hours and fifty-nine minutes.

The plane Johnson arrived in was not the same one which left San Francisco, but carried on from Cheyenne on a schedule which would have obtained had the original plane not experienced difficulty.

When the plane carrying the San Francisco mail was forced down at Laramie, Wyo., Tuesday night because of fog, another plane hopped off from Cheyenne to maintain the schedule. It carried a consignment of mail for New York points. This is the mail that was delivered at the Long Island air mail field Wednesday.

The pouches which left Frisco Tuesday morning probably will not arrive at 12 hours overdue reaching New York.

GOVERNOR WALKER WILL NOT TESTIFY

stated their intention of calling on the governor for statements in connection with the Latham charges.

Attaches of the governor's office Wednesday afternoon stated that copies of letters and telegrams had been received at the executive offices commending Governor Walker for "loyalty to his friend," and the attitude he has maintained since the sensational charges by Mr. Latham.

Branch Urges Probe.

In a letter to the grievance committee of the Atlanta Bar association, James A. Branch, president of the bar association, requested a prompt investigation of the charges.

"A number of the leading members of the bar association, requested to take this morning, discussed the matter of the recent appointment of Judge G. H. Howard as judge of the newly-created division of the superior court of Fulton county and the circumstances surrounding that appointment by the governor, including the serious charges which have been made concerning that appointment."

Mr. Branch wrote the committee:

"It was the sense of that meeting that the Atlanta Bar association, through its grievance committee, should make a full, fair and thorough investigation of these charges and of the facts surrounding the appointment, especially as it is charged that the almost unanimous endorsement of the bar was ignored in making the appointment and the appointment seems to have been made purely as a political appointment and in spite of the serious charges which had been made against Judge Howard to the governor, and without any investigation on the part of the governor as to the truth of those charges."

"At this meeting a resolution was unanimously adopted calling upon the president of the Atlanta Bar association to order the entire matter to the grievance committee and to request the grievance committee to meet as soon as possible and conduct a full and thorough investigation, having the evidence reported stenographically."

"Accordingly I request that the grievance committee proceed as promptly as possible to hold this investigation and to report its findings to the bar association at a meeting to the bar association at a meeting to be held as soon as possible."

Hearing Friday Morning.

The announcement of a public hearing on the charges referred to by Mr. Branch was made upon its receipt Friday morning at 10 o'clock.

A copy of Judge Branch's letter was forwarded to Judge Howard and Mr. Latham Wednesday, with a short formal letter from the grievance committee, which called attention to the letter of the president of the Atlanta Bar association and gave information of the date of the hearing. The letter also suggested to Judge Howard and Mr. Latham that, although the committee has no power to compel the attendance of anyone, the attendance of those having any information of the charges and whose presence was desired, would be "requested" upon receipt of names from either interested party.

Following receipt of this letter from the grievance committee, Edgar Watkins, acting for Judge Howard, wrote to Marion Smith, member of the grievance committee, expressing Judge Howard's willingness to submit to an investigation, but demanded that specific charges be made.

"Before Judge Howard is not subject to an investigation by the grievance committee of the Atlanta Bar association, he is willing to have the proper investigation, expressing Judge Howard's willingness to submit to an investigation, but demanded that specific charges be made."

"If, in accordance with the constitution and by-laws of the Atlanta Bar association an investigation is to be made of definite, specific, material charges, and these are stated in writing to Judge Howard, he will gladly assist your committee in learning what the facts are with reference to the specific matters."

WESTBOUND MAIL AT GOLDEN GATE.

San Francisco, August 22.—San Francisco moved nearly four days' travel nearer to New York today through the success of the air mail service's first test of night flying westward. Pilot Clair K. Vance brought more than 400 pounds of mail from eastern points to Crissy field here tonight at 6:24 o'clock, thirty-four hours and twenty-three minutes after the first installment of it had left Hempstead field, on Long Island, yesterday morning.

This mail was delivered tonight so that within an hour official messages from Mayor Hylan, of New York, to Mayor Ralph, of San Francisco, or from eastern mail officials to those in charge of the service's affairs in the west, were being read.

The last rays of the setting sun, sweeping up through the Golden Gate toward the Berkeley hills across San Francisco, gilded Vance's on-rushing plane as it came out of the evening haze and observers at Crissy field sighted it several minutes before it landed. He came on rapidly and dove down to the field, against the wind, without circling. He made a quick and graceful landing, the wheels of his plane touching the ground less than a minute after the roar of the plane's motor first was heard.

Watchers Were Quick.

But if he was quick, those awaiting him were quicker. The propeller of his plane had not stopped turning when a mail truck, waiting for his consignment of messages and packages, was backed up directly to the plane and men threw the pouches from the cockpit to the truck, which sped away to the postoffice for sorting of the letters.

Half a dozen special messengers with motorcycles, whose engines were popping, stood by for the special delivery letters which accompanied the pouches and hurriedly dashed away to begin deliveries.

Vance, who is a slender, wiry figure of medium height, clambered out of his seat with a smile. He is a veteran air mail pilot and, except for an added effort to make speed on the fields and in flight, today's effort was nothing unusual for him. His home is in Logansport, Ind., and he formerly was one of the pilots on what the field men called "the St. Louis run." He was one of America's first war-time aviators, too, and served as an instructor in France for budding American aviators.

Averaging 100 Miles.

Vance said there had been no unusual incident in connection with his flight. "I had head winds soon after taking off from Reno," he said, "but they were not serious. I averaged about 100 miles an hour from there here, flying most of the time at 13,000 or 14,000 feet altitude."

A. C. Nelson, superintendent of the western division of the air mail service, and Colonel W. E. Gilmore, of the air service of the ninth corps area of the army, extended official greetings to Vance as he stepped down from his plane.

"I'm proud of our fellows," said Nelson. "Fogs, such as delayed this morning, may be a nuisance today in Wyoming, but they are not a hindrance in our service. Today's accomplishment establishes the air mail service as a success."

Nelson himself is a former army aviator.

The "Reason Why" of a 7% Investment

We have available for immediate delivery some 7% First Mortgage Bonds secured by property in Southern cities. The following facts will appeal to investors who demand definite reasons before they buy a bond:

Safety: There has been no more striking instance of healthy growth in trade, industry and population in any large section of the country than has occurred in the South during the last 25 years. Miller Bonds are issued against a background of industrial stability. No investor ever lost a dollar in Miller Bonds.

Yield: The South's great resources, as yet only partially brought into use, are demanding (and obtaining) huge amounts of capital for their further development. A strong demand for capital results in a liberal rate.

On request, we will gladly furnish descriptive circulars and booklet, "Creating Good Investments." Call or telephone, or tear out this advertisement, write your name and address on it, and mail it.

Rise in Potatoes Caused Cuno Fall, Says J. H. Bensse

Athens, Ga., August 22.—(Special.) A rising can happen in Europe, which is sitting on a volcano, likely to go off at any time, according to Capt. J. H. Bensse, prominent Athens business man who, with his son, Thomas, returned Sunday from Europe after a tour of several weeks.

German industry is humming. German fields are filled with maturing crops, but German people are in the most pitiable plight of the nation's existence, according to Captain Bensse.

With the value of the mark decreasing every day the outcome of the situation in that country is far from hopeful, he said. Captain Bensse visited the home town of his father, Henry Bensse, who was an influential citizen of Athens in his life time and one time mayor.

His father's birthplace was standing the captain said, located in the city of Altona, which is separated from Hamburg only by a street. Altona has a population of 800,000 and Hamburg 1,500,000, he said. While in Germany Captain Bensse visited his relatives and was entertained at, not less than fifty family parties in honor of his visit.

As an example of the cheapness of the mark as compared with the American dollar the captain and his party enjoyed a handsome suite of rooms at one of Berlin's finest hotels for only $1.75 per day and a splendid meal for seven people cost only $2.75.

Dangers.

The captain said that it is dangerous for foreigners to go about at night in Germany and he was accompanied by relatives wherever he went. While in the country he visited all the famous old castles of the late Emperor William, which are now under control of the government.

Captain Bensse visited all of the principal cities of Germany and also spent several days in Holland, Switzerland and England. He landed at Cherbourg, France, and sailed from Hamburg August 4 and reached New York on August 15.

German politics are in control of the labor or communist party, he said. The fall of Cuno, he said, was due to that official allowing the price of potatoes to advance beyond reach of the German masses, he stated. Potatoes are the principal food of the German people.

In regard to the Ruhr, Captain Bensse said that the German people hope that America will eventually step in and help settle that question satisfactorily. He said all European nations are jealous of the United States.

The United States department of agriculture estimates that China now has more than 59,000,000 farmers, who, with their families, must consume 80 to 90 per cent of the total population.

"What's the matter, mate?" "Old Bill fell from the scaffolding and just managed to catch a plank and hold on. 'Was he saved?' 'No, the whistle blew 5 o'clock and it was time to knock off, so he let go.'—Passing Show.

RAILWAYS APPEAL
MERGER REFUSAL

A request to the Georgia public service commission to reconsider its action in recommending to the interstate commerce commission that the railroads petition to lease the Carolina, Clinchfield and Ohio railway be not granted today, was filed by the Atlantic Coast Line railroad and the Louisville and Nashville railroad.

A hearing on the petition for reconsideration has been set for August 25. The two railroad companies, assisted by the receiver of the Georgia and Florida Railroad company, had protested against action on the petition to lease the Carolina, Clinchfield and Ohio Railway company on the grounds that it would stifle competition.

The petitioners contend that the Atlantic Coast Line and Louisville and Nashville companies, if leased, would result in the creation of a monopoly in the coal fields of the state and to need greatly according to the petition.

Georgia "cannot expect to develop manufacturing industries" in its eastern and southern sections unless a steady supply of fuel is established, the petition continues. The coal fields of the state are said to be situated in the western and southern parts of the state, and the petitioners contend that the coal fields of the state are said to be situated in the western and southern parts of the state.

State Agricultural And Horticultural Societies Hold Meet

Mount Airy, Ga., August 22.—(Special.)—The Georgia State Agricultural and Horticultural societies held their annual convention and the state horticultural society in its forty-seventh annual gathering meeting in joint session today for a two-day meeting.

Many prominent people have assembled from all parts of the state, including Hon. W. D. Hannah, Columbus, Ga.; J. W. Williamson, Commerce; J. B. Wright, Cairo; C. R. Haskins, Atlanta; C. W. Morrill, Macon, and many others.

The meeting was called to order in the Monterey hotel here at 11 o'clock this morning by B. W. Hunt, president of the state horticultural society. The cost of the convention was $100,000, and the horticultural society is the largest of its kind in the south.

TEXTBOOK CONTRACT
MEASURE IS VETOED

Governor Clifford Walker, Wednesday vetoed a senate resolution adopted by the 1923 general assembly, calling upon the state superintendent of schools to make contracts for textbooks for the common schools for a period of only two years instead of five as was customary in the past.

The governor also disapproved a bill providing for the election of the solicitor of Baldwin county court on September 15, it was announced at the executive offices.

Representative Howard Ennis, of Baldwin, was the author of the bill which would remove the office of solicitor of the courts from appointment by the governor and place it on an elective basis.

Governor Walker several weeks ago vetoed another bill by Mr. Ennis relating to the same subject. In the first measure the representative sought to lengthen the term of the present solicitor, which expires January 1, 1924.

The resolution regarding the school books contract was introduced in the upper house by Senator Beauchamp, of the twenty-second district. The governor assigned as his reasons for vetoing this measure, that it would have enabled book publishers to go into other states and offer Georgia books at exorbitant prices; then demand the same excessive prices in this state, and under the resolution the school board would be required by law to make contracts with them.

A meeting of the state board of education was held in the superintendent's office during the day for the purpose of issuing notice for the regular school book contract. At the same time a conference was held between seven school superintendents relative to their plans for the next school year's work.

Governor Walker, a member of the board, predicted the board will not make a contract which would bind the state for a period of five years, although, he had vetoed the resolution by Senator Beauchamp which instructed the body to limit the contract to two years.

The board plans to fix the contract so that in case a free textbook law is passed by the 1924 general assembly, the state would not be compelled to remain bound to it, it was stated.

Members of the Capitol View Civic league Wednesday expressed themselves in favor of further substantial increase in the police force as a result of the speech delivered before the club Tuesday night by J. E. Bowden, chairman of the Fifth Ward Civic club, in which he urged the addition of 50 men to the department.

A committee appointed to advocate the enlargement of the department was planning to confer with other civic organizations. The committee consists of Councilman W. G. Cooper, C. M. Ford and C. J. McLendon.

Mayor Walter A. Sims Wednesday approved a resolution introduced by Alderman J. L. McLendon designating that a committee of five should arrange ceremonies for laying the cornerstone of the municipal market house.

The committee is composed of Alderman Robert Gordon, mayor pro tem, Norman Miller, one of the directors of the Municipal Market company, and Mrs. Alonzo Richardson.

Mrs. Norman C. Sharp and Mrs. W. D. Williamson, the latter three members of the Woman's club. The Woman's club has been actively interested in the market project.

Brassieres—
Odd Lot $1 to
$2 Ones for 59c

Odd lots, very few of a kind. Most of them are slightly soiled and the sizes are broken—but if it weren't for that, they'd be $1 to $2.

Of cool ventilated pink mesh, heavy brocades, satins and a variety of other brassiere materials. Open front or back styles. Practically all sizes in the lot, but the majority of them are in large sizes. Choose at 59c.

Bracelets—
Fashion Favors
These for Fall

Little does she care whether it's a narrow band of engraved sterling silver, a band of platinum set with gleaming rhinestones, a ribbon of colored imitation ivory with white figures, a white ivory band set with jet and rhinestones or a transparent colored ring with jeweled filigree appliques on it—just so it's a bracelet and a pretty one.

Women looking for novel bracelets will find many a pretty one to choose from in High's Jewelry Section, including all of those mentioned above. Prices range from 59c to $3.95.

Pearl Beads—
Sale Three Hundred
Necklaces at $1.95

What's the difference between these beads and the expensive pearl beads in a white satin lined box bearing an exclusive name? Very, very little difference. Both are made by the same process, with the same base, dipped in the same solution. The difference lies in the finish—and few people are expert enough to detect it.

These beads are especially dainty and luminous. Graduated in strands from 18 to 32 inches. White or cream tints. Solid gold clasps in gold ring or white gold filigree clasps. At $1.95.

'Kerchiefs

GIRLS' SCHOOL PLANS
AWAIT BID OPENING

Bids for the Girls' High school building will be opened September 7, and after that date the board of education will make known its plans to finance the structure, it was learned Wednesday from W. N. McCalley, Jr., chairman of the finance and building committee of the school board.

Speculation is rife around the city hall and among patrons of the public school system as to what method will be employed by the board in attempting to build the school.

It was believed probable that the board plans to pay for the first installment of the building out of the current revenue during 1924, but members declined Wednesday to comment.

Increased revenue is expected from two sources next year. The new school census, on which is based the state school fund appropriation, shows that Atlanta is entitled to a larger allotment from the state than it has received. The amount to be received from the statutory 28 percent of the city's tax receipts is expected to be larger, due to increased tax assessments.

RAILWAYS APPEAL MERGER REFUSAL

A request to the Georgia public service commission to recommend the inter-railroad merger to the state, the Georgia State Agricultural and Horticultural Societies hold meet.

Mount Airy, Ga., August 22.—(Special.)—The Georgia State Agricultural and Horticultural Societies in their twenty-seventh annual convention and the state horticultural society in its forty-seventh annual gathering met in joint session today for a two-day meeting.

Many prominent people have assembled from all parts of the state, including Hon. W. D. Hannah, Columbus, Ga.; J. W. Williamson, Commerce; B. W. Hunt, Eatonton; J. B. Wright, Cairo; C. R. Haskins, Atlanta; C. W. Morrill, Macon, and many others.

The meeting was called to order in the Monterey hotel here at 11 o'clock this morning by B. W. Hunt, president of the state agricultural society.

The costly advance of the cotton boll weevil is the occasion for the joint session, and the key-note that serves the meeting is the time honored slogan "live at home."

Mayor Irvin, of Cornelia, welcomed the visitors in a timely talk on the possibilities of this section, and "Uncle" Riley Hamrick responded with the suggestion "that Georgia always will lead the world in quality fruit production, especially when the little clover to the wall, and she must resort to something other than cotton for a money crop."

Professor J. Phil Campbell, extension director of the Georgia State College of Agriculture, answered the question "Can we live at home?" by stating that we can when we recognize how costly it is to grow cotton under weevil conditions and buy food and feeds with cotton money.

One thousand negro farmers left Georgia within the past twelve months because there was not enough food raised for them. The change of our farm program will include the growing of more foods.

The boys' and girls' clubs have started a movement that eventually will help to overcome the weevil by making crops other than cotton into money crops.

D. D. Long discussed the peach crop of Georgia, illustrating his talk by charts and maps. The Georgia peach crop brought in "near a fifth of Georgia's entire cash crop" in 1923, he said, "and the peach is a saving crop in the present time of trouble."

At the afternoon session the cotton boll weevil problem was discussed by J. H. Deloach and the home orchard and garden, by C. C. Newman, of Clemson college, S. C.

Want Home Orchard. Chairman Hunt said in introducing Professor Newman that Georgia has forgotten the home orchard in her efforts to grow market fruits and he longed to have again the delicious varieties of peaches and apples once grown in Georgia's home orchards.

Session was held this evening and will be continued through Thursday. Provision has been made for an automobile trip through many orchards in the vicinity of Cornelia and Mt. Airy to give the visitors some idea of the possibility of the Georgia fruit growing industry.

Some uniform attack on Georgia's farm problems will be considered at each session and every element—educational, agricultural and horticultural—is represented.

We are about to reach the crisis and the turning point is just over the hill. Whether we readjust our program and get agriculture back on a profitable basis or whether we abandon large areas of our farm lands will depend upon the next step we take," said one of the leaders.

"The weevil is helping to shift land deeds and the question is 'will the new owners pass the deed along to others or will they make the old acres pay again as they did in years gone by'."

The entire evening session was given over to the celebrated landscape gardener, Warren H. Manning, of North Billerica, Mass., discussed the laying out and equipping of home grounds.

The last day for applications is August 30, and the business meeting at which these applications will receive consideration will be held Thursday night, September 6.

Fourth and fifth degrees will be conferred on the evening of September 13, and thereafter degree work will follow on succeeding Thursday nights until November 8. The fall convocation of the rite will be held November 20, 21, 22 and 23.

CITY TO PARTICIPATE IN MARKET CEREMONY

Mayor Walter A. Sims Wednesday approved a resolution introduced by Alderman J. L. McLendon designating that a committee of five should arrange ceremonies for laying the cornerstone of the municipal market house.

The committee is composed of Alderman Robert Gordon, mayor pro tem.; Norman Miller, one of the directors of the Municipal Market company; and Mrs. Norman Richardson, Mrs. Norman C. Sharp and Mrs. W. D. Williamson, the latter three members of the Woman's club. The Woman's club has been actively interested in the market project.

Members of the Capitol View Civic league Wednesday expressed themselves in favor of further substantial increase in the police force as a result of the speech delivered before the club Tuesday night by J. E. Bowden, chairman of the Fifth Ward Civic club, in which he urged the addition of 50 men to the department.

A committee appointed to advocate the enlargement of the department was planning to confer with other civic organizations. The committee consists of Councilmen W. G. Cooper, C. M. Ford and C. J. McLendon.

"Lack of harmony among members of the police committee and police officials and a shortage of policemen especially mounted men, puts Atlanta more and more at the mercy of thieves and crooks," Mr. Bowden told the tenth ward meeting. He also urged better salaries for policemen.

PRESS DAY AT FAIR October 12 Is Set Aside for Newspapermen.

The Georgia Press association has accepted through its president, C. D. Rountree, of Wrightsville, the invitation to make Friday, October 12, Press day at the Southeastern fair in Atlanta this fall.

On that date the newspaper men of the state will be the special guests of the fair. Lunch will be served them within the grounds, and they will be given the freedom of the park with all of its shows and amusements.

Press day was inaugurated several years ago, and has had a larger attendance each year. It gives the editors an opportunity to visit together the exhibits of the rapidly growing agricultural and industrial resources of the south.

GIRLS' SCHOOL PLANS AWAIT BID OPENING

Bids for the Girls' High school building will be opened September 7, and after that date the board of education will make known its plans to finance the structure, it was learned Wednesday from W. N. McCall, Jr., chairman of the finance and building committee of the school board.

Speculation is rife around the city hall and among patrons of the public school system as to what method will be employed by the board in attempting to build the school.

It was believed probable that the board plans to pay for the first unit of the building out of the current revenue during 1924, but members declined Wednesday to comment.

Increased revenue is expected from two sources next year. The new school census, on which is based the state school fund appropriation, shows that Atlanta is entitled to a larger allotment from the state than it has received. The amount to be received from the statutory 25 percent of the city's tax receipts is expected to be larger, due to increased tax assessments.

MILTON E. AILES ACCEPTS GEORGIA RAILWAY POSITION

Milton E. Ailes, well-known newspaper man of Atlanta, and for the past fourteen years connected with the Associated Press in charge of bureau at Memphis and Atlanta, has resigned from that organization to accept a position with the public relations department of the Georgia Railway and Power company.

Mr. Ailes first came to Atlanta in 1900, from Chicago, when the southern division of the Associated Press was organized and headquarters located in Atlanta. After serving as night manager and day manager in the headquarters for several years he was transferred to Memphis in 1913 as manager of that bureau. He was again transferred back to Atlanta in 1917, and given charge of the local bureau, a position he held until southern division headquarters were again moved back to this city from Washington.

Identified with southern newspaper work for the past twenty years, Mr. Ailes takes to his new position a full knowledge of the development and progress of the south in the past two decades and a wide acquaintance among newspaper men of this section.

BLOODWORTH IS NAMED VETERAN BUREAU HEAD

J. G. C. Bloodworth, of Atlanta, Wednesday was appointed by Governor Walker as head of the state bureau to assist veterans of the world war and Spanish-American conflict. Captain Bloodworth was recommended unanimously by the state executive committee of the American Legion for the place.

After serving three years in the army during the world war with the rank of captain, Mr. Bloodworth returned to Atlanta. He was elected state adjutant of the legion and during his term was actively engaged in work for disabled soldiers.

The office to which he has been appointed by the governor carries a salary of $2,400 a year, with a $2,600 expense allowance, as created by a bill passed during the closing days of the 1923 general assembly.

Three-Dimension Moving Pictures Now Are Reality

BY RODNEY F. DUTCHER.
Chicago, August 22.—Motion pictures with three dimensions have become a reality.

On a screen 40 feet wide and twenty feet high, George K. Spoor, owner of the Essanay Film company, Sunday demonstrated them at his studio here and declared they were about to revolutionize the movie industry.

Spoor, who closed down his great film plant seven years ago, when he commanded a world-wide market for his films, has spent seven years and $1,500,000 in developing "natural vision" pictures, which add depth and width and height of the standard movie. Sunday he announced the immediate organization of a great new company of players which will begin making these pictures on a huge scale.

Eleven pictures in relief, thrown on the big screen to a private audience Sunday, were regarded as the mightiest and most potential scenes ever made with a camera. At all angles, they were free from distortion. The scenes were made without special lighting. Exteriors, each had the appearance of life and actuality—everything but color.

Pictures Appear Alive.

An automobile seemed not a motion picture, but an actual automobile. A picture of Lake Michigan gave the impression to spectators that they were sitting on the shore. Figures walking into the pictures appeared to be walking on a level stage, and a landscape, embracing hundreds of acres, seemed to be the wooded fields themselves seen from the mouth of a dark tunnel. When one figure passed in front of another the impression of distance between was clear. These pictures made the ordinary picture look like a thumb-nail vignette.

When a tree was shown, members of the small audience raised the impression that they could walk around it.

Ever since the establishment of the film industry, producers and inventors have sought to add the third dimension to motion pictures. Many film men who have had an intuition of what was going on in the Essanay plant here have repeatedly declared the picture of three dimensions impossible of realization, and optical experts throughout the world have scoffed at the possibility of life-likeness when one picture was superimposed upon another.

Scores of new problems in cinematography had to be overcome to secure this, according to Spoor, who worked on the new pictures with F. John Berggren.

The creation involved building of new cameras, perforating, printing and projection machines and the construction of a vast screen on entirely new principles. No single feature of the old, has hitherto been used. Using two lenses, it superimposes one picture upon another. The film is two and a half inches wide, twice the width of the standard film, and each picture thereon has three times the former area.

Took Years to Perfect.

The camera took years to perfect. Spoor says. Then came the task of devising a projection machine which could throw pictures on a screen "in the round." It involved optical principles never before tried. And failure followed failure through a succession of experiments, until very recently the problem was solved.

The screen problem came next and was finally solved by a transparent curtain of interference lines, in principle a part of the projection machine, but placed 135 feet from the lens. All this work was done in great secrecy behind closed doors in the studio. Occasionally long delays were necessitated when new varieties of lenses had to be sought abroad. The scene of the experiments was formerly one of the country's greatest film plants.

Gigantic new pictures in relief will be kept on view here for the benefit of film men and theater owners who are expected to come flocking.

THIRTY BEAUTIES CHOSEN IN TEST

pictures of the judging, and the film to be taken this afternoon will be shown at the Howard at an early date as possible.

Howard Kingsmore, manager of the Howard and a personal friend of Cecil B. deMille, famous motion picture classic producer, has also written Mr. deMille asking that he grant "Miss Atlanta" special consideration in outlining to her what success she might expect should she care to adopt a silver screen career.

"Miss Atlanta" will be sent to Atlantic City September 5, 6 and 7 with all her expenses and those of a chaperon she selects paid in full. She will represent this city in the National Beauty Tournament and compete with reigning beauties of a hundred North American cities for the title of "Miss America—the Nation's Fairest Daughter."

During her stay in Atlantic City she will be the guest of honor of that most famous and fashionable North American ocean resorts, and will take a leading part in brilliant balls, colorful pageants and carnivals, a bathing review, a rolling chair parade and myriad of other delightful entertainments.

Type to Be Selected.

In company with the other contestants, she will be feted and honored in scores of ways, and all Atlantic City—from the mayor to the meanest citizen—will turn out to pay tribute to her charm.

"Miss Atlanta" it is understood by the judges, will be selected not only upon her beauty of face and form, but upon her charm of manner, culture, poise and general ability to represent Atlanta in a creditable manner at this greatest of North American beauty events.

Due to the fact that he has a pressing engagement which compels his presence elsewhere, Mayor Sims will not be present as a judge this afternoon. He has consented, however, for the remaining four to proceed with the elimination contest, and he will be present Friday when the final selection is made, casting his vote for "Miss Atlanta."

In view of the fact that approximately 200 photographs were submitted, it was manifestly impossible for The Constitution to publish all of them. Many were unsuited to newspaper reproduction. Publication of the pictures was largely governed by the order in which they were submitted.

All photographs, with the exception of a few ruined in process of engraving, will be mailed to their owners in the course of a week.

Former Residents Of Vermont Asked To Back Coolidge

Grafton, Vt., August 22.—(By the Associated Press.)—Approximately 150,000 former residents of Vermont, now voting in 47 other states, are actively supporting a national movement to organize and enlarge Coolidge-for-president clubs. John Barrett, former director of the pan-American union, announced today on his return home from Washington and New York.

Mr. Barrett's statement followed one issued recently by Senator Moses of New Hampshire, in which Moses asserted Mr. Coolidge would be a candidate for the republican nomination in 1924 and that he should receive the solid support of New England.

COLUMBUS ATTORNEY ASKS $50,000 DAMAGES

Americus, Ga., August 22.—(Special.)—Mrs. Mary P. Fowler, J. L. Bostwick, Mrs. J. L. Bostwick, C. F. Fuller, Mrs. Janie Fuller and W. T. Lane, an Americus attorney, are defendants in a suit for $50,000 damages filed in Sumter superior court by M. H. Norris, a former Grange lawyer, whose residence is now at Columbus.

Norris seeks to recover damages for alleged malicious prosecution and false imprisonment caused by the defendants named in his suit and because of unwarranted notoriety given him by such prosecution and imprisonment.

In his pleadings, Norris declares that his prosecution and imprisonment were given wide notoriety through stories appearing in newspapers throughout the state, and that in these newspaper stories relating to his predicament were given fantastic heads.

He was further damaged, he says, by being held up in certain newspapers as a "hairbreadth Harry" in the funny pictures, wearing a musical belt, influencing judges, jurors and ministers in church, and as a result of which his professional earning capacity was damaged to the extent of many thousands of dollars.

Papers in the case were served upon Mr. Lane today, and the suit described by him as "utterly ridiculous." Mr. Lane asserts that the Columbus lawyer borrowed money from him with which to leave Americus during October, 1921. This money, he says, has not been repaid.

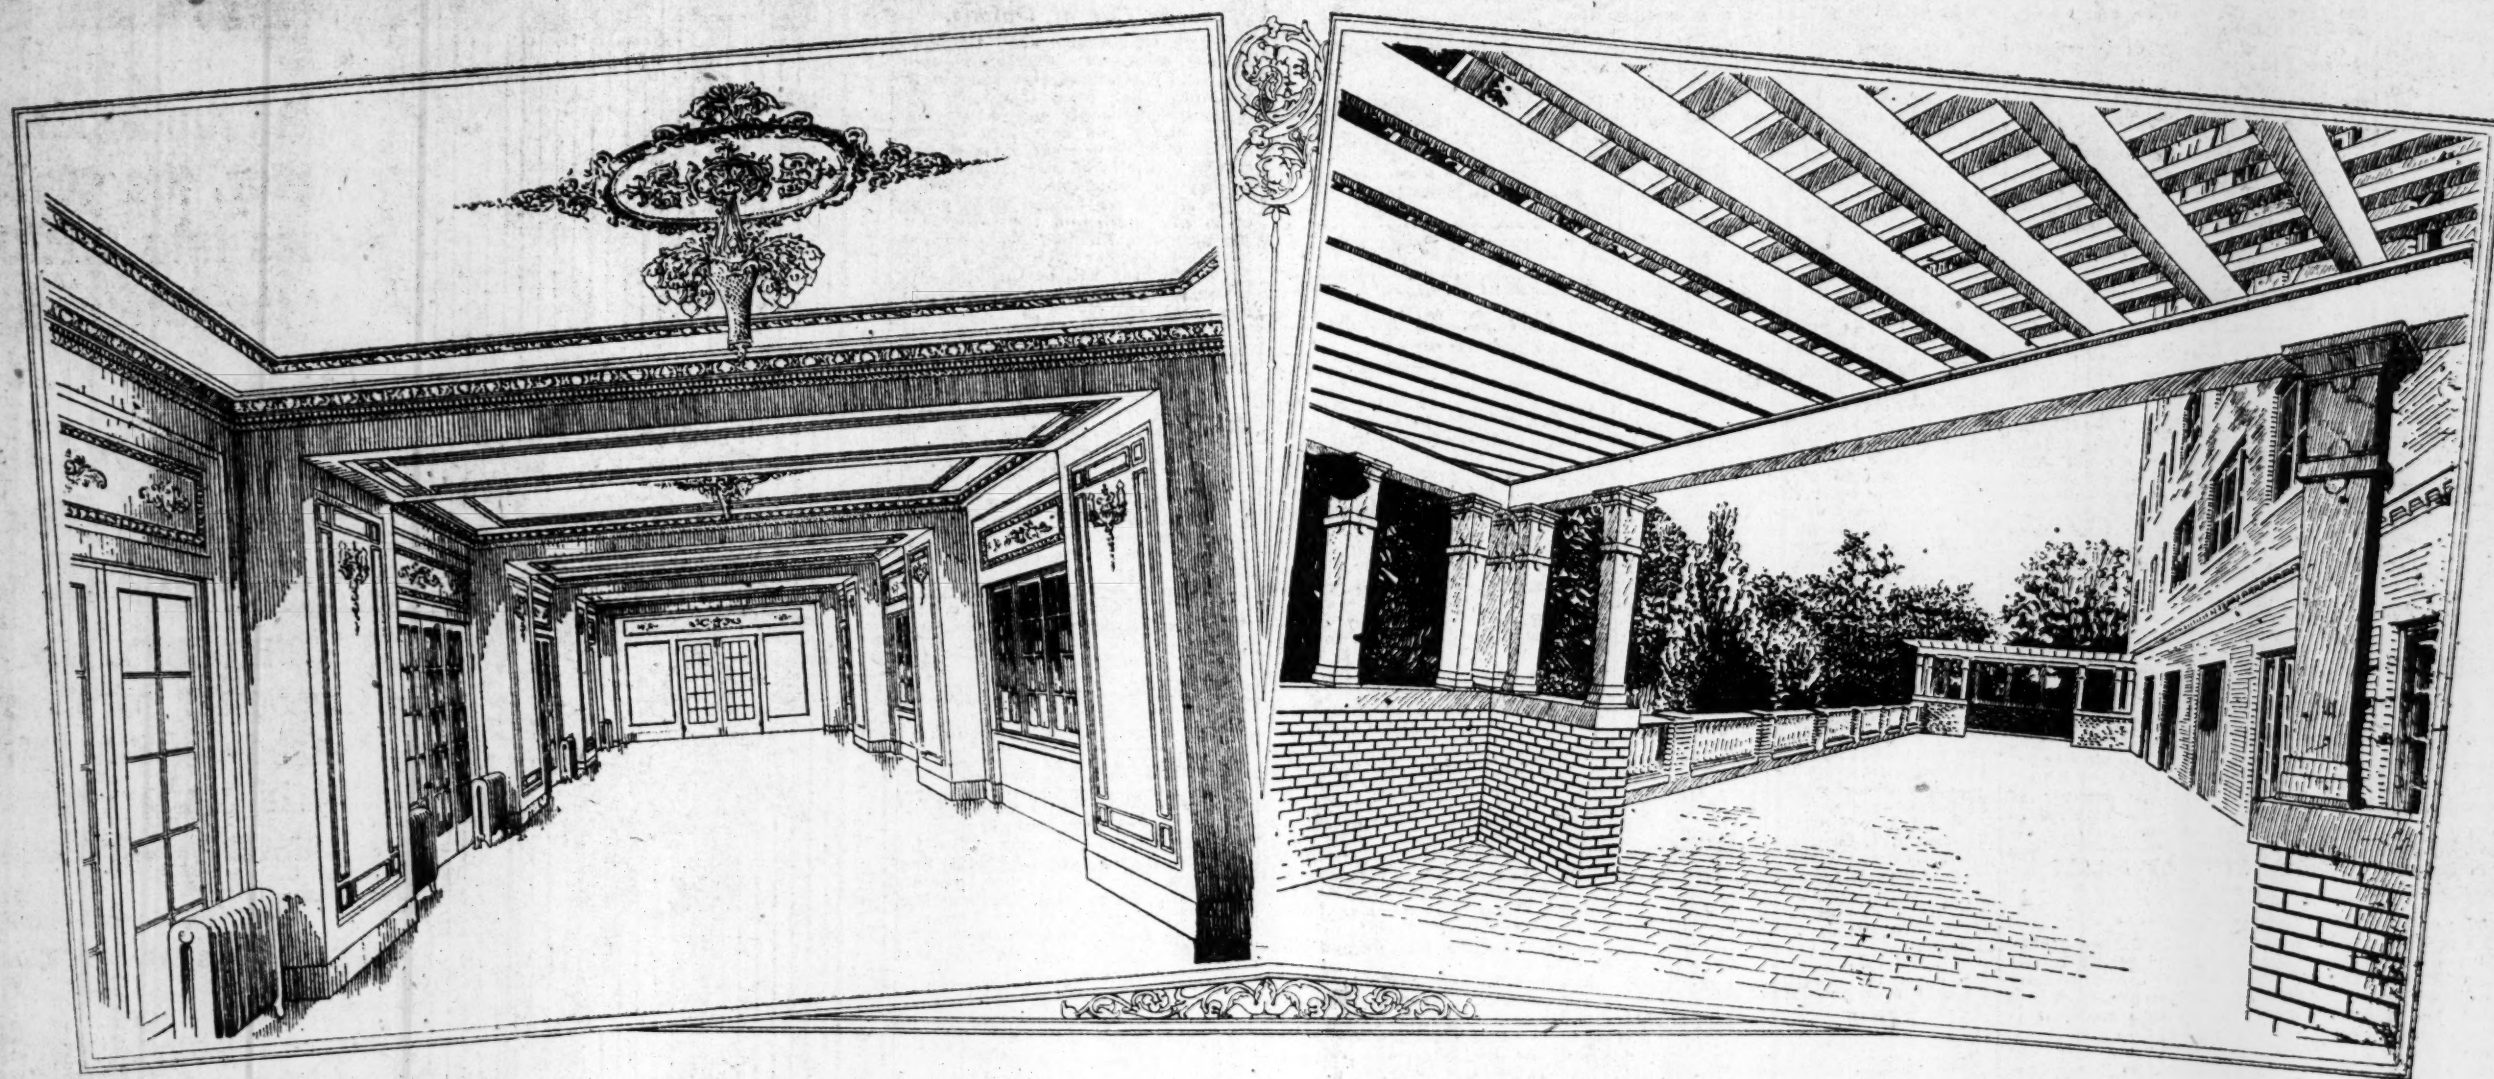

Norris created wide-spread comment by many actions during his stay in Americus and some surprise has been expressed at the filing of the suit due to the fact that Mr. Lane and others, it is said, were instrumental in securing his release from prison, where he had been remanded, being unable to make a bond to keep the peace.

Announcing the Appointment of

Mr. Alfred Baumberger as Manager

PERSHING POINT APARTMENTS

View of Dining Room and Dining Terrace of the New Pershing Point Apartments

The brick and hollow tile used in the Pershing Point Apartments were furnished by the Keeling-Cassidy Brick Company.

Mr. Baumberger will have the assistance of every modern mechanical and electrical device in keeping Pershing Point Apartment service up to the highest known standard. For instance, each housekeeping apartment will be supplied with a Kelvinator Refrigerating Machine, an apparatus that fits into the ice compartment of an ordinary refrigerator and maintains a temperature very much colder than would be possible by the use of ice. It supplies ice in cubes in quantities more than sufficient for the need of any family. It freezes ices, sherbets or custards and requires from you absolutely no attention. It is electrically operated at an expense of approximately $3.00 per month and is supplied by the Baker-Kelvinator Company of Atlanta.

The Lowry Company have installed in the Pershing Point Apartments, plumbing fixtures of the highest possible efficiency.

The size of each apartment is greatly increased by the installation of double and twin MURPHY IN-A-DOOR beds of an attractive square-post design of hand finished mahogany.

The ranges in the kitchen of the smallest housekeeping apartments are of the same high quality that are used in the kitchens of the cafe and are supplied by the Crumley-Sharp Hardware Company. This firm has also furnished the locks and other hardware used throughout the apartment.

All rugs, furniture and other furnishings throughout this apartment were furnished by the Sterchi Furniture Co.

It is with no small degree of pride that the owners of the Pershing Point Apartments announce the appointment of Mr. Alfred Baumberger as manager of the Pershing Point Apartment Cafe and of the entire building. Mr. Baumberger was engaged upon the personal recommendation of Mr. W. E. Richardson, superintendent of the Piedmont Driving Club, and one of America's greatest service experts. Mr. Richardson has given the benefit of his wide experience in the arrangement and equipment of the dining rooms and kitchens and will continue to cooperate with Mr. Baumberger in making Pershing Point service equal to that found in the most exclusive clubs.

Mr. Baumberger has practically completed the selection of his assistants. Among them is a chef of established reputation and a full corps of men and women, trained in service that will appeal to the most discriminating.

Grant-Jeter Company

Agents for the Better Apartments

Grant Building

The tile used in the dining terrace so beautifully illustrated above, was furnished by the Carmichael Tile Company, who are also to be given the credit for the wonderfully beautiful tile bath-rooms.

The elevator service of an apartment of the Pershing Point type is as essential to the comfort of its tenants as street car transportation is to the city at large. Two high speed passenger elevators, installed by the Otis Elevator Company, assure most rapid transportation from one floor to another, and a service elevator will take care of transportation of all supplies. These elevators are equipped with every known safety device and no building in any section can possibly offer you better elevator service.

The dining terrace extends over the roof of the Coursey & Gordon Drug Store, which immediately adjoins the apartment building proper. This gives those living in the apartment every practical advantage of having a high-class drug store located in the building, without the disadvantage of giving the general public access to the lobby of the apartment. The Coursey & Gordon store is one of the most complete in Atlanta and has established an enviable reputation for its prescription department.

A unique feature of Pershing Point Apartment service will be the free delivery of the Atlanta Constitution, one of the South's greatest morning newspapers, to each housekeeping apartment.

R. T. Lester has decorated the apartment throughout, and his work has added greatly to the attractiveness of each individual apartment.

$3,000,000 BILTMORE BOND ISSUE BOUGHT

First mortgage bonds amounting to $3,000,000 on the Atlanta Biltmore hotel, now under construction, have been purchased by the Citizens and Southern Co., jointly with the Marine Bank and Trust company and the Whitney Central Trust and Savings bank of New Orleans, it was announced Wednesday.

It is anticipated that within a short time the bonds will be offered to the public.

The Atlanta Biltmore, when completed next spring, will represent an expenditure of more than $6,000,000, and will be one of the finest hotels in the country.

The $3,000,000 Biltmore mortgage constitutes the largest loan ever placed on a piece of Atlanta property, it is said.

The Atlanta Biltmore, when completed next summer, will be the largest and most modern city hotel in the southern states. It covers an entire city block on West Peachtree street, between Fifth and Sixth streets; is to be twelve stories, fire-proof, of the latest approved hotel architecture, containing approximately 550 guest rooms, and 450 baths, and a residential apartment building containing approximately 1200 rooms. The appointments and furnishings will be of the highest quality, and the hotel will be adequately equipped to meet the increasing demand for high-class accommodations in Atlanta. On the ground floor of the hotel there will be a number of shops and display rooms, and will be almost a city under one roof.

The management of the hotel will be under the direction of John McE. Bowman, who is recognized as one of the ablest hotel operators, and the head of the Bowman interests, under whose supervision the Biltmore, Belmont, Westchester, Biltmore, Belmont, Bellevue and other well known hotels have been so successfully operated. The Atlanta Biltmore is admirably located for both tourist and commercial patronage; will be one of the finest and most beautiful buildings in the country, and is expected to bring to Atlanta a large number of tourists the year round.

OLIVER TIMMIE BURIED; HEART ATTACK FATAL

Oliver Timmie, assistant cashier of the Capitol City club, was buried Sunday in the family burial grounds at Chester, S. C. Mr. Timmie was on his way to attend a family reunion in Chester when he died from a heart attack suddenly in Spartanburg, S. C., after reaching Atlanta Wednesday.

Mr. Timmie, who was 37 years of age, had been connected with the management of the club for 11 years. He was the brother of William Timmie, the superintendent of the club.

Mr. Timmie is survived by his mother, Mrs. C. I. Timmie, of Chester; four brothers, William Timmie, of Atlanta; Charles Timmie, of Charlotte, N. C.; James Timmie, of Chester; and two sisters, Mrs. J. C. Strubling, of Jacksonville, Fla., and Mrs. L. C. Grant, of Columbia, S. C.

YOUTH TAKES BLAME FOR VIOLATION OF LAW

Savannah, Ga., August 22.—When R. G. Ryan was arraigned in the federal court this morning on a charge of violating the national prohibition act, Porter Hunter, a youth, very generously took the entire blame upon his shoulders for the violation of the dry law.

Hunter yesterday pleaded guilty to a charge similar to that preferred against Mr. Ryan.

The jury was out on the Ryan case at 3 o'clock.

Officer Is Killed, 18 Others Injured As Barn Collapses

Camp Meade, Md., August 22.—First Lieutenant Walter R. Hirschmiller, a reserve officer in the army air service, was killed and eighteen other reserve officers in training here were injured today in the collapse of an old barn in which they had sought shelter from the rain. Lieutenant Hirschmiller's home was in Pittsburgh, Pa.

Most of those injured suffered only minor hurts, but the injuries of one or two were said to be serious.

About thirty reserve officers had taken refuge in the barn and most of them had climbed to the loft because of the soggy condition of the floor.

The major Melvin M. Franklin, of the medical officers' reserve corps, was the only physician available at the time of the collapse, and he administered first aid.

A court of inquiry to investigate the accident has been ordered by Lieutenant-Colonel William D. Mills, commandant of the camp. The barn was not part of the government property.

A check up made by camp officials showed that nineteen men had been injured, none seriously. All were taken to the base hospital, but most of them had been discharged early this afternoon.

Lieutenant Hirschmiller, it was said, was struck on the head by a falling joist, suffering a fractured skull.

BARRETT LIABILITIES OVER THREE MILLION

Augusta, Ga., August 22.—Barrett & Co.'s schedule of liabilities, filed with the United States court here yesterday, showed total liabilities of $3,737,058.45 and not $2,730,887.38 as published by the Associated Press. Discounted notes, $73,220.75. Taxes $47,669.42. Wages $1,221.40.

The schedule of assets will be filed next Saturday, August 23, it was learned today. Judge Joseph Ganahl, referee in bankruptcy, allowed an extension until that time because of the vast amount of work involved in preparing the schedule.

WATER SUPPLY FAILS IN JEFFERSONVILLE, GA.

Jeffersonville, Ga., August 22.—(Special.)—The water supply of the city of Jeffersonville has completely failed, and the people are having to use water from surface wells, it is reported.

Failure of the water supply was caused by the fact that cylinders from the pump in the artesian well have broken off in the well and cannot be gotten out. For weeks the authorities in charge of the well have worked to remedy the situation, but hope of repairing the present well has about been abandoned, it is said.

Jeffersonville city officials are contemplating sinking another well or laying pipe lines to nearby springs, it is reported.

SENATOR W. J. HARRIS INDORSED IN MONROE

Monroe, La., August 22.—(Special.)—Senator W. J. Harris addressed a large crowd at the 11 o'clock hour of court this morning. Every person in the audience indorsed his record in the senate by a rising vote.

TWIGGS MEN INSPECT TURNER COUNTY FARMS

Jeffersonville, Ga., August 22.—(Special.)—A big delegation of Twiggs county farmers, business and professional men have just returned to this place from a trip to Turner county, where they observed the results of the diversified farming as undertaken by that county.

The men making the trip have brought back favorable reports of the work being done in Turner county. After a tour of the county and inspection of its agricultural industries, they declare that "Turner is well on the way to recovery from the depressed financial conditions of the past few years operating on the cow hog and hen plan by Mr. Henderson on halves. The plan was for the land to be divided into two parts, one for the farmer and one for the tenant, the products were equally divided, it is said.

Visit Convict Farm.

The Turner county convict farm was inspected, where fine corn and potatoes were observed growing. A herd of goats raised by the farm furnished meat for the convicts, it is stated. Here the party drank water from the camp's air pressure tank, and observed other conveniences.

The next stop of the Twiggs delegation was made at the farm of G. W. Brown, president of the Turner County Farm bureau. The tourists were impressed with the crops of hay, corn and cotton on this farm, but the farmers' special interest was shown in the pecan grove, which was with its seedlings, also used as a pasture.

The Holly poultry farm, operated by J. Pope Teal, the Butler and Alldridge white leghorn farm at Sycamore, the Ashburn creamery and the hatchery and the farm of J. J. Evans were all visited in order by the Twiggs party.

Among those making the trip to Turner county were S. E. Jones, S. C. Jones, Sr., S. C. Jones, Jr., J. H. Balem, J. L. Mercer, W. C. Stokes, F. C. Balem, W. M. Solomon, Baker, R. Jones, W. H. Caffif, Professor J. L. Carved, J. F. DeFord, D. S. Faulk, M. S. Faulk, A. L. Walters, Irvin Fitzpatrick and Rev. C. J. Broome.

PLAN TO ENTERTAIN S. S. ASSOCIATION

Buford, Ga., August 22.—(Special.) The Methodist, Presbyterian and Baptist churches at this place are busy preparing for the entertainment of the annual convention of the Gwinnett County Sunday School association which will be held in the latter church next Sunday day.

At the noon hour a basket dinner will be served, in picnic style, on the lawn of the Baptist parsonage which adjoins the church lot.

Several hundred delegates are expected to attend this meeting as the State Sunday School association is offering bannets to the Sunday school sending the largest delegation of pupils and another for the largest number of officers and teachers.

The people of Buford are planning to serve the delegates a meal of fried chicken with other entertainment for those who attend. A good program has been arranged for the day.

Two Are Killed As Army Planes Collide in Air

Pensacola, Fla., August 22.—Captain George E. Hill, second Lieutenant Cornelius McFadden, both of the United States marine corps, were killed instantly today and First Lieutenant M. A. Richal, also of the marine corps, probably fatally injured, when two Vought airplanes crashed in midair at an altitude of between three thousand and four thousand feet near the Pensacola naval air station.

McFadden, whose home address is Philadelphia, was pilot of one of the planes with Captain Hill as assistant pilot. Richal was flying along in the second machine. No official statement of the crash has been issued but strong wind currents are believed to have caused the planes to collide. The plane in which the two aviators were killed fell into the bay, but Richal's machine dropped on land.

Pensacola, Fla., August 22.—Hill was married and his home address was Leominster, Mass. McFadden has a wife in Pensacola, Fla.

Naval physicians were not able to say as yet if Richal was injured internally.

PARALYZED MAN FOUND HELPLESS ON R. R. TRACKS

Americus, Ga., August 22.—(Special.)—John Howard, aged about 65, was found paralyzed and helpless today on the right-of-way of the Seaboard Air Line railway, and taken to the Americus hospital. His entire right side is paralyzed and he is unable to give any account of himself.

He evidently is an umbrella repairman, a kit of repair tools and parts being found near him, together with a complete cooking outfit packed in a bag. On his person was about $20 in cash.

That he had recently been in Tifton and several points in Florida is indicated by documents found in his bag, but nothing to indicate the name of any relative was found.

He was identified by Seaboard railroadmen as having traveled from some point in Alabama to Richmond on a Seaboard train several days ago. Authorities are searching for his relatives.

Totally helpless and unable to speak, the old man's name was learned only through examination of his effects. Among these were wrappers from a number of packages, principally from a New Orleans manufacturing concern, all addressed to John Howard in various Georgia and Florida cities.

Although he apparently is able to comprehend what is going on about him, Howard is unable to move and can give no information concerning himself or his relatives. A pencil, given him by Dr. Chambliss, who asked him to write the name of some relative who might be notified of his condition, dropped instantly from Howard's nerveless grasp, and he has been unable to tell anything about himself.

WOULDBE WRECKERS OF TRAIN IN CUSTODY

Macon, Ga., August 22.—James Garfield, age 10, and Glover Franklin, 12, negroes, arrested for placing several irons on the main line of the Southern Railway near Macon late yesterday were today committed to the juvenile court for an indefinite period.

The train ran over the iron bolts at a slow rate of speed and railway officials say this prevented what might have been a serious wreck.

SPARTA BUSINESS MEN WANT KIWANIS CLUB

Sparta, Ga., August 22.—(Special.)—Business men of Sparta are again discussing the organization of a Kiwanis club and it is thought that a club will be organized during the early fall. This movement has been sponsored here by the Sparta Ishmaelite and its efforts, it now seems, will be successful.

The cooperative hog sale which is being gotten up by the same newspaper is not assured of success as enough already have been listed to fill one carload and others are being listed each day.

This will be the first cooperative sale held in this county, but it is thought that they can be arranged very easily in the future.

Ships Car of Onions.

Sparta, Ga., August 22.—(Special.) John O. Moore, of Culverton, shipped two solid carloads of Bermuda onions yesterday that were raised on his farms in this county, near Culverton.

Mr. Moore has gone into diversified farming on a large scale, raising several varieties of vegetables which he ships in large lots.

He also is the largest pecan grower in this section of the state, having over five hundred acres set out in Stewart paper shell pecans. His yield this year will be the best ever harvested according to indications now.

Schools Open Soon.

Sparta, Ga., August 22.—(Special.) Everything is in readiness for the opening of the Sparta public schools on Monday, September 3. A full quota of teachers has been selected, headed by Superintendent Fred Gunn.

This is Professor Gunn's second year in Sparta and the school has prospered under his management. The number of students has increased so much in one of the primary grades that an extra teacher has been employed to help with the work.

County School Superintendent C. W. Moran announces that the county schools will not open until October 1. Repair work is being done on many of the school buildings, which will necessitate a month's delay. A full quota of teachers for the county schools has been elected.

SAVANNAHAN HELD FOR WOMAN'S DEATH

Savannah, Ga., August 22.—Mrs. Ada Stokes, Miss Vivian Sanders, 19 years of age, was instantly killed last night when she was shot twice by a pistol in the hands of Frank C. Butler, at the latter's home and store on the Augusta road near Dundee bridge.

The tragedy was the result of an attempt to frighten Butler, according to evidence submitted during the hearing before Judge Schwarz this morning in recorder's court.

Butler has been released on bond of $1,000 on a charge of involuntary manslaughter.

It developed this morning during the hearing that the young woman, with W. C. Williams and W. R. Wise, had visited Mr. Butler's home about 10 o'clock last night, where they danced. At 11 o'clock, according to the testimony, Butler informed the party that they would have to leave, as he must retire.

The two young men and Mrs. Stokes left the city, and after riding around for about an hour, decided to again ride out the Augusta road. Upon arriving near the home of Butler, Williams and Butler informed Mrs. Stokes suggested that the young men stop as "she wanted to frighten Butler and have some fun."

Leaving the car, Mrs. Stokes went to the front door of Butler's home and, shaking the door, demanded entrance. Butler arose from his bed, according to the testimony, and asked who was at the door. The young woman failing to answer, Butler shot through the door, inflicting two wounds from which the woman died in a few moments.

NEW TEACHERS ADDED AT WOMAN'S COLLEGE

Milledgeville, Ga., August 22.—(Special.)—Several new members will be added to the faculty of the Georgia State College for Women, which opens on September 17. Three of the new professors held doctor of philosophy degrees. They are as follows:

Professor of French will be Prof. Francis Daniels, Ph. D. Dr. Daniels has taught in the summer school of Colby College, Me., and has taught in the University of Missouri, and the University of Arizona. He has traveled extensively and will be a strong professor of French.

Professor of psychology will be Dr. A. G. Steele, B. S., University of Missouri, Ph. D., Clark University. Prof. Steele has taught in Mississippi, in Missouri, in the University of West Virginia, and in the University of Texas.

Associate professor of psychology will be Mrs. A. G. Steele, Ph. D., Clark University, a woman of marked scholarship and of successful experience in college teaching.

Associate professor of biology will be Miss Clara M. Nixon, B. S., Simmons college; M. S., Oregon Agricultural college. She has taught in Delaware and in Cornell University.

Teacher of piano, Miss Jessie Buchanan, a graduate of Wellesley college. She has had experience in teaching piano at Wellesley College, Mass., at Waltham College, South Carolina, and at the Florida State College for Women. She has taken advanced study in Boston University, Simmons college, the University of California, Chicago, and in the University of Washington.

There will be several other assistants and altogether the faculty for 1923-24 will be the strongest in the history of the college.

FIND BODY OF MAN ON RAILROAD TRACK

Reynolds, Ga., August 22.—(Special.)—The body of Wiley Wyatt, 74, was found this morning near the railroad track between Beechwood and Flint river bridge, three miles east of Reynolds, with limbs broken and skull crushed. He is supposed to have been struck by a west bound train some time during last night.

He was seen passing through Reynolds going in direction of Fort Valley yesterday, en route to his home in Fort Valley. The coroner's verdict was that he came to his death by being struck by a Central of Georgia train near Beechwood, Ga.

He is survived by three sons, I. B., of Decatur, Ill.; W. C. and M. E., and one daughter, Mrs. Beulah Dyer, of Fort Valley. The body will be carried to Junction City for interment tomorrow.

BOY BANDIT GIVEN 25-YEAR SENTENCE

Savannah, Ga., August 22.—John Julian Joyner, of Macon, Ga., today pleaded guilty in the superior court to a charge of robbery. He was sentenced to from ten to twenty-five years in the penitentiary.

The young man entered a plea of guilty but went before a jury to ask for mercy because of his youth and alleging that he had been influenced by one older than himself, a man named Posthress, for whom the police have been looking since Joyner's arrest. The lad showed no emotion during the trial or when sentenced.

BOARD TO DISCUSS BIBLE TRAINING

Proposal from the Christian council that schools, upon request of parents, excuse pupils twice a week to permit attendance on classes in Bible study to be conducted by teachers supplied by the council, will be presented to the administrative committee of the Atlanta board of education today, with indications Wednesday that final decision would be deferred until later.

A delegation to present the proposal includes Rev. B. R. Lacy, Jr., John A. Mangert, Charles N. Walker, Floyd Field, Edgar Craighead and M. L. Throver.

W. W. Gaines, of the Atlanta board, said Wednesday night that since the proposal included only what would be considered an "excused absence," he saw no reason why the sentiment of the board would not favor the proposal. No expense would be incurred by the board, and the time lost by the pupils would not be excessive, he pointed out.

"The proposal," said Mr. Gaines, "includes all members of all denominations. Every child of every religion will have the same privilege of being excused to attend religious training classes. This proposition is not a strictly Protestant one, but is an all-inclusive one. I do not expect final action on the proposal, however, at this meeting."

Rare Day in August Lends Autumn Touch To Heated Metropolis

New York, August 22.—By way of summer variety, the coldest, rather than the hottest, August 22 in 52 years was registered in New York Wednesday.

In early morning hours the mercury dropped to 53 degrees, breaking a record that goes back to August 22, 1871.

A storm, centering on the upper Great Lakes region, is sweeping eastward. It brought frost Wednesday to parts of Michigan and Minnesota, and further frosts were predicted for Thursday morning in northern New England and northern New York state.

FIRE RAZES CENTRAL COLLEGE MAIN HALL

Tuscaloosa, Ala., August 22.—The main building of Central college, a girl school here which formerly was the state capital of Alabama, was practically wiped out by fire this afternoon. The blaze was thought by firemen to have originated from defective wiring. All school equipment was lost.

JOHNSTON TO ADDRESS CIVITAN CLUB FRIDAY

Steve R. Johnston, superintendent of Grady hospital, will speak to the Civitan club Friday at its weekly luncheon, it is announced by W. R. Massengale, chairman of the program committee. Joe Reynolds will preside in the absence of President Tom Dunham.

SCHEDULE PEANUT STORAGE HEARINGS

Washington, August 22.—Hearings on tentative regulations of agriculture for the storage of farmers' stock of peanuts, prepared by the warehouse division of the department, will be held at Suffolk, Va., August 27. Albany, Ga., August 29 and Fort Worth, Texas, September 1.

Business Outlook Subject Of Speculation at Capital

BY MARK SULLIVAN.

Washington, August 22.—What everybody calls "the business situation" is much on Washington's mind. To some it is a matter of concern for political reasons, looking to the election next year. To others it is a matter of concern from the point of view of the administrative management of the country. The latter group is trying to determine, first, whether business is likely to grow better, or to grow worse, through the operation of ordinary conditions; and second, if bad conditions threaten, what can be done to forestall them within the limits of legitimate government influence on business and industry.

Nearly all the pessimism starts with the Ruhr and Europe. It is true from the economic point of view, the Ruhr and Europe are very bad indeed. They have been worse all along than America has understood. From the standpoint of business, getting the world back to economic normalcy, the Ruhr situation is sheer madness. But the thing to remember is that the Ruhr situation can change for the better. There is within possibility that on any morning the dispatches from Europe might be such as to give practically every line of business in America stimulus toward optimism. If France and Britain should settle their differences, and if they should fix Germany reparations at a feasible sum, instantly about every business man in Germany and many in other countries would be a customer for American goods and American credit. This is the hopeful possibility.

On the other hand if Britain and France do not agree things will be very bad indeed throughout western Europe; and from a present bad they would go to a future worse. But while this is true, it is not true that worse conditions in Europe will alone or necessarily make worse conditions in America. Nearly everybody who looks into the situation thoughtfully says that America has already discounted the worst that can happen in Europe.

Keep Hands Off.

In other words, one turn of affairs in Europe might give an immense stimulus to America; the other turn cannot make things materially worse for us. The consideration of this European aspect of our American economic future may be concluded by saying that practically no person of any consequence in Washington believes that America either can or ought to attempt anything in the way of initiative toward settling the Ruhr question. It is a thing of fate which we can not control or affect within the restraints of wise action on our part. There are some who say we might try to purchase an early prosperity in Europe, by forgiving several billion dollars of debts; but practically no one in any position of responsibility believes it would be either wise or practicable for us to try this. The cure of Europe must arise within Europe. Only in case all the parties concerned should ask us to act as mediator can we take a hand in the situation. As to the money and credit which Europe must have so soon as it gets on the track again, every business man in Europe knows that American private bankers have an abundance of funds which will be available as soon as the conditions are right.

Wheat Farmer a Worrier.

Next to Europe, the American wheat farmer is the principal subject of consideration. His condition is very bad. The present price of wheat does not pay the cost of producing it and if present prices continue, a good many wheat farmers must face bankruptcy. But this applies only to the farmers who raise wheat only. Farmers in other lines, such as corn and soybeans, are not as badly off as they were two years ago. In the near future several things are expected to make things somewhat less distressing to the farmer. One is that the cost of what he buys is likely to go down. The building boom in cities, which is now the principal area of excessive demand for labor and consequently excessively exalted wages, is expected soon to reach the point where the five years' accumulated deficit of buildings will have been filled and the pace will slacken. Nevertheless, when Congress meets in December, the relatively submerged condition of the farmer will be most to the front. Everybody in Washington admits the need to help the farmer. Everybody is willing to go the limit to help him. They are willing to regard the farmer as a preferred industry. But when it comes to practical suggestions, there are not many. There has been to relieve the farmer of taxes, to admit frankly that the farmer should be preferred to the cities, and to put the taxes on the latter. But that is less for Washington to do than for the states. Federal taxation on the farmer is slight. It is the state taxes for roads, schools and the like that have recently been expanded to unreasonable heights.

Gives Own Life Saving Six Men From Sure Doom

New York, August 22.—John Gilmartin, who by dint of hard labor and study worked his way up from a New York city policeman to assistant state's attorney of Illinois, was today hailed as a hero for saving six men from a sure doom by his own life.

The former state's attorney had a job standing on a curve of the New York Central railroad, whistle in hand, to warn track workers of approaching trains. A dozen men were working in a cut at Gouverneur place when Gilmartin saw an express train approaching. He blew his whistle and the men stepped over to the express track, thinking the train was a local. Gilmartin, seeing their mistake, ran toward them, shouting a warning. As they jumped back to the other track the engine struck him, killing him instantly.

Fifteen years ago Gilmartin gave up his job on the police force here and started to study law, attending Kent's college. He went to Chicago, was admitted to the bar and made a name for himself in private practice. Then he went into politics and became assistant state's attorney, holding that position for several years.

However, the hard pace of study and work that he had kept for years, finally told on him, and he was forced to give it up. On doctor's orders, he traveled for a time. Then his money gave out and his private practice being gone he took the railroad job, his health still broken, in order to support his wife, Florence, with whom he lived here in a two-room apartment.

COMMISSIONERS PUSH PLAN TO SELL SHIPS

Washington, August 22.—Commissioners O'Connor and Lissner of the shipping board today announced the sale of the eighteen routes now operated with government vessels.

Efforts will be made to sell the routes for the sale of ten ships now operated on trans-Pacific routes by the Pacific Mail Steamship company and the Admiral Line. Each company operates five passenger cargo shipping board vessels.

COLUMBUS POLICE RAID EXCLUSIVE CLUB

Columbus, Ga., August 22.—(Special.)—City policemen late Tuesday night raided the exclusive Muscogee club, confiscated six bottles of rye whiskey and arrested J. A. Struppa, the secretary, charging him with violation of the prohibition law and keeping a gaming house.

At the same time six members of the club, all eminently prominent in Columbus, were arrested, charged with playing and betting. They were Rhodes Brown, Gordon Flournoy, R. W. Swope, P. B. Patterson, F. G. Power and G. L. King. Bonds of $100 were assessed against them, while Struppa and the negro porter and bonds of $500 each on the dry charges.

In the northeast corner of the club on Broad street the officers found a large number of bottles of whiskey. Five were partially filled with rye whiskey while the sixth bottle had never been uncorked. The officers were in possession of a warrant, permitting the search of the building.

Brandon Now Official.

Brandon, Ala., August 22.—(Special.)—The first act of the new city commission in session Tuesday night was the adoption of the ordinance formally changing the name of the joint municipality of Phenix City and Girard to Brandon, Ala.

Witness Klan Parade.

Brandon, Ala., August 22.—(Special.)—Several thousand people crowded the streets last night to witness a parade of some one hundred members of the Ku Klux Klan in full regalia.

Posters were scattered through the town stating that the Twin City Klans No. 77, which had in every way the new commission in the enforcement of law and order in the Alabama municipality.

Hold Municipal Court.

Columbus, Ga., August 22.—(Special.)—Three hundred or more civil cases, mainly suits on accounts for small amounts, were disposed of during Wednesday morning session of the municipal court before Judge J. H. Lewis, some of them by trial and many of them on orders, there being no contest. This was the regular monthly court day.

All cases in which jury trial was demanded went over until the regular September term when the arguments will be made for the disposition of the docket of jury cases that will have accumulated since the jury term.

Let Construction Bids.

Columbus, Ga., August 22.—(Special.)—Bids will be let Thursday for the erecting of the service building of the Columbus Electric & Power company at the northwest corner of Eighteenth street and Second avenue, as well as bids for three houses to be constructed at Goat Rock for the superintendent, foreman and employes, according to an announcement from R. M. Harding, manager of the local utilities company Wednesday.

Marion Court Closes.

Columbus, Ga., August 22.—(Special.)—All business before the recess session of the April superior court of Marion county was completed and the court adjourned at Buena Vista shortly after 11 o'clock Wednesday morning.

Solicitor Walker Flournoy and Court Reporter R. O. Perkins returned to the city Wednesday and Judge George P. Munro went to his farm at Putnam for a few days. He will return home the last of the week.

The court had been in session since Monday morning and many civil and criminal cases were disposed of, the docket being practically cleaned up. The next regular term of the court will be convened in October.

Trial Flight of Bomber Heralds New Plane Era

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Dayton, Ohio, August 22.—Surpassing even the wildest dreams of its designer and other air service officials, the Barling bomber, world's largest airplane, completed its maiden flight at Wilbur Wright field this evening.

Ease with which the giant dreadnaught of the air was maneuvered, both on the ground and in flight and the slow take-off and landing speeds, were the chief features of the performance, witnessed by less than 1,000 visitors and characterized as the most promising maiden flight ever undertaken by any aircraft. The plane was in the air 28 minutes.

Only one minor detail was found to be in other than perfect order during the flight. This was the connecting between the upper and lower elevator planes on the tail, which vibrated considerably, according to members of the crew.

The vibration was not sufficient to mar the complete success of this greatest of flights since the Wright brothers, of Dayton, made their memorable voyage through the air at Kitty Hawk, N. C., in December, 1903.

Shakes With Nervousness.

Even as the dreams and hopes of the Wright brothers were founded on this flight, so were the dreams and hopes of Walter Barling, the Englishman who designed this ship, centered completely in this flight.

Barling, the ship took the air he smiled and expressed his confidence in his handiwork, but his hands were shaking and his nervousness otherwise was apparent as he climbed through the small trap door into the fuselage of the ship following Lieutenant Harold H. Harris, pilot, and Engineer Douglas Culver.

After the four men entered the ship, Harris took his place in the pilot's chair, the nose of the fuselage. Fairchild, who was standing on the ground, saw the pilot's seat. Barling was standing on the "flying platform" with the upper half of his short body above the fuselage, and Culver was at the instrument board.

Under its own power, the giant craft majestically swung around for the quarter turn, and moved off to the southwest to get in position.

Arrived at this position, the ship

Negro Migration Northward Stirs Up Politicians

BY THOMAS L. STOKES.

Washington, August 22.—Political leaders are watching the migratory flood of negroes pouring into the northern states in the belief that it will have an influence in the next presidential election.

The northward movement of both skilled and unskilled workers is going ahead in an astonishing manner. Over 350,000 have migrated to northern industrial centers since December last year. The exodus from the south is showing no signs of slackening, according to reports to the labor department, and officials who are carefully noting the migration throw up their hands when asked how long it will last.

That this movement is going to have its effect on the political complexion of the next presidential election is not denied by politicians. Large numbers of these workers are coming into states listed as doubtful and taking up their residence. Democrats are somewhat concerned.

Hold Balance of Power.

"In such states as New York, New Jersey, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio, the negroes hold the balance of power, and there is a strong negro vote in other doubtful states, such as Maryland, Delaware, Missouri and Kansas," one democrat said.

While democrats realize the significance of the movement, they point to several recent developments as to results of the last elections as indicating that much of the negro vote in doubtful states will swing democratic in the next election.

The negro vote had a large part in the democratic victory in the Chicago mayoralty election, they contend, in the state where there is a large negro vote usually strongly republican. Many negroes also voted democratic in the congressional elections last year in Delaware and New Jersey, New York and Maryland, they claim.

Protest Sleep Appointment.

Many protests have been made recently by negro organizations over President Coolidge's appointment of Bascom Sleep, of Virginia, as his secretary. Sleep is a southern republican and was strong in the ill-fated white republican movement in the south. This action, democrats claim, will play an important part in bringing many negroes into the democratic fold.

Others discredit the part that the migration will have in the coming elections, claiming that the southern negroes will not register and take an active part in politics by that time. These admit, however, that the negro vote will be sought, and educated, and that it will be an important factor in the future.

Ohio is getting the greater part of the negro influx, which has been going on for five years now. Their factories and mills are taking in over 37 per cent of the newcomers, according to estimates of the labor department, with Pennsylvania second, with over 21 per cent. Michigan receives 10.52 per cent of the influx; New Jersey 6.4 per cent; New York 4.75 per cent; Illinois 4.49; Kentucky 4.36; and Connecticut 3.04, with others scattering and smaller.

In the last year there have been astounding increases in the migratory movement, with unskilled workers coming in greater numbers than the skilled.

for Atlanta and the many other sections of the country affected.

No other remarkable feature of the weather for August was cited by Mr. von Herrmann. He declared that until the present disturbance the temperatures had been neither unusually hot nor unusually cold.

From all parts of the United States reports came Wednesday telling of unusual cold spells. The coldest August in the history of Detroit was reported, while Kansas City has experienced temperatures of 53 degrees. A 50-mile gale swept New York city bringing the temperature down from 70 degrees to 53 degrees, establishing a new record for August.

Mr. von Herrmann predicted showers for Thursday, in addition to the abnormal drop of the mercury.

president fixing the blame. The members of the commission and the president hope that the report will focus public sentiment on the responsible parties, and force a settlement. Hammond said Wednesday, though, it would be several days before the report was submitted.

The conference in New York will also be attended by representatives of the railroads and a member of the interstate commerce commission. It will consider principally the supply of coal at various points, as well as the distribution of information to the public as to the use of substitute fuels.

There are now about 75,000,000 tons of bituminous coal above ground. Wadleigh told the president, with production running now about 10,500,000 tons a week. The Anthracite stocks in the hands of consumers total about 25,000,000 tons.

NOTICE OF REWARD

It has come to my attention that the law of the State of Georgia has been flagrantly violated in the Counties of Bibb and Baldwin in the instances of the recent outrages in these counties. The Ku Klux Klan stands for law and order. It has dedicated its every power and influence to the suppression of crime through the regularly constituted officers of the law and in building a sentiment for the strict enforcement of our laws. Representing the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, the undersigned hereby gives notice that he is increasing the rewards already offered by the Governor of this State for the arrest and conviction of the guilty parties in the sum of Fifteen Hundred ($1,500.00) Dollars in each county.

BETTER THAN SILVER AND GOLD.—Goldsmiths with brought nothing into this world, and it is certain we can carry nothing out. And having food and raiment, let us therewith be content.—1 Timothy 6: 6, 7, 8.

PLAN WITH CAUTION.
Heavy tobacco sales at satisfactory prices continue, day by day, in the breaks at Blackshear, Hazlehurst, Tifton, Nashville, Hahira, Douglas, Vidalia and other south Georgia markets.

The state department of agriculture states that approximately 1,500,000 pounds of leaf were sold in south Georgia last week, averaging around 25 cents a pound. This is approximately $400,000 in cash having been distributed in one week to the growers of a score of counties. The sales have been heavy since the opening of the season and will be for three or four weeks yet.

Just how much money will in the total flow into the tobacco growing counties of south Georgia this year, from a new industry that has hardly heretofore been considered seriously as an agricultural feature, can not be correctly estimated at this time, but certainly sufficient to very materially change the economic condition of affairs in those favored sections.

Georgia will this year, almost without its own knowledge, jump to fourth place in tobacco production among the tobacco growing states of the union. What it may do in another year or two is problematical, but acreage is certain to increase very largely next year. That it promises one of the surest and safest avenues of escape from the boll weevil depression is obvious provided the farmers in the tobacco belt will keep cool, move with deliberation, and not try to stampee into something new without first learning well their bearings.

Farmers must play safe in this just as far as practicable, in their operations. Tobacco growing successfully is perhaps more of a science than that of any crop known to the south, for it not only involves the regular high-class, industrious, intelligent farming that the real business farmers employ, but also the "curing" of the leaf after the production. That is the largest and most important part of the operation. For every 5-acre tract devoted to tobacco there must be a curing barn, and this must be built right. The Georgia college of agriculture can be most helpful in this matter.

The sum and substance of the whole proposition in tobacco growing to be a success should be undertaken only after the farmer has learned the lesson, not only from reading bulletins but from personal contact, or practical study.

Most of the south Georgia farmers have, in groups, imported experienced tobacco farmers from North Carolina to guide them successfully through their first season. This again shows the value of co-operation, for one such instructor or field man may keep a dozen growers from running into the rocks.

Overproduction in everything is disastrous, therefore it is the course of wisdom to watch also that feature another year. Georgia has imposed a 10 per cent tax on the manufactured products of tobacco sold in Georgia, and that feature—whether or not the tobacco buyers, who, very much like the oil refiners, all revolve around a single hub, are to penalize the Georgia leaf to that extent—should be watched. Land speculators and tobacco land bonds should be watched. The fact is any sandy loan—usually the soil that is most unproductive for other crops—will grow tobacco successfully in Georgia's climate, if the farmer knows how to cultivate and care.

All in all, tobacco growing promises to become a big money-crop for Georgia.

for Georgia, and in it there is much substantial hope of relief from boll weevil depression, but as in all worthwhile undertakings, it pays to investigate carefully, master well the requirements, and proceed with progressiveness, but with the precaution of sound business.

AMERICA'S "GOLF CAPITAL"
Among Atlanta's many proud distinctions is the fact that it is now recognized as the "Golf Capital" of America. Its fame for the excellence of its courses, the enthusiasm of its people for the game, and the large number of distinguished players it has produced, is more than national. It is international. Wherever golf is played and wherever men and women find fascination in discussing the lore of the game, there the names of Atlanta players are known and there the high skill of these players finds recognition.

In addition to having many players whose skill has won wide recognition, Atlanta enjoys the unique distinction of having three great champions of the game—Alexa Stirling, Bobbie Jones and Perry Adair—as well as one of America's most outstanding instructors. No other city can claim so much, and the Atlanta may well be excused for expanding its chest somewhat when discussing the golfing glories of its home city.

Atlantans are going to be given an opportunity Saturday to see this galaxy of internationally known stars brought together in a single constellation, for they are scheduled to play a match on the East Lake links for the benefit of the banquet hall fund of the Atlanta Woman's club. This is a rare treat, and an excellent opportunity for the enthusiast to learn just how the thing is done!

These distinguished players, who have shed so much luster upon their home city, were recently tendered a luncheon at the Woman's club, which afforded their many friends and admirers an exceptional opportunity to express their appreciation of these talented and esteemed fellow citizens.

The Woman's club of Atlanta, which has done so much to make this city a happier place in which to live, is rendering another valuable service in arranging a meeting between these great players, as well as in providing an opportunity for the public to show its appreciation of all of them at one and the same time.

SAFETY AND EDUCATION.
Judge Shepard Bryan, president of the Atlanta Safety council, spoke a volume in one sentence when he said "safety and education run hand in hand."

This statement was made in the course of a banquet address Tuesday evening under the auspices of the Decatur Chamber of Commerce. Further on he said:

"The Atlanta Safety council is doing splendid work and its effect will be felt in a short time. Safety weeks and other spasmodic safety campaigns are a step in the right direction, but they do not go far enough. Safety is a subject that must be kept before the public mind constantly."

The reckless driver is a menace to human life and limb, and the law should deal with such a person rigidly—to such an extent, indeed, that any grievous offense should result in such a driver being barred from further use of the streets and highways in that capacity.

The intoxicated driver, who is reckless from a whisky-distorted brain and a callous indifference, is an even more serious menace, for such a person's mentality is so destroyed temporarily that it is not subject to a normal yielding to danger signals, distress calls, emergency methods of control, or other conditions that may avert or lessen the consequences of an accident.

And yet, in its real analysis, the careless walkers, or the slow thinkers, or the absent-minded drivers or pedestrians may, and do, endanger their own lives every day—and the lives of others—despite the fact that they may be the very opposite of reckless, and shining examples of sobriety.

Not all the blame for accidents is traceable to careless and reckless drivers of automobiles. Frequently passengers alighting from a street car in the front will step thoughtlessly in front of the car, even after it has started up and the line of motors at its right has moved along with it.

People must drive right, walk right, and all elements entering into a city's life must cooperate in bringing about a greater degree of safety on the streets. This applies, too, to children playing in the suburban streets, and to the responsibility of parents in the premises.

Look Out for the "Hot" Wire

Electric light and power wires which are erected along our streets and alleys are liable to break and fall at any time. A child knowing nothing about the dangers of electricity, is apt to pick up a loose wire and receive a fatal shock.

Parents should instruct their children carefully on the following points: Do not touch any wire lying in the street that may be charged and don't let other children touch it. Ask someone to telephone to the police and in the meantime stand by it to warn others of the danger. This applies also to all wires hanging from a pole, tree or building. Never fool with any wires you find strung to a pole. The warnings apply equally to some grown-ups whose curiosity may sometimes tempt them to touch a wire to see if it is really "live."

Just In Passing
BY JAMES A. HOLLOWAY

Governor Walker's appointment of Oden Persons, of Forsyth, to the superior court judgeship of the Flint circuit, will be regarded all over Georgia as one of the most popular he could have made, for he is not only an able lawyer, but one of the state's most outstanding and progressive citizens.

Oden Persons has the judicial temperament—cool, conservative, deliberate, unyielding to wrong-doing and unrelenting in defense of the right.

He will make one of Georgia's ablest jurists, and the governor is to be congratulated on a choice that will meet such warm approval throughout the state.

Judge Persons has very extensive business connections, being interested in banking, cotton mill operating and in other large affairs. In all of his extensive business interests, however, he has never neglected the law which is the profession of his heart, and in which he has achieved distinguishing success.

While he has served in the state senate and was president of that body, he has loved politics more for his friends than for himself.

While Senator George lost a most able secretary when Louis Russell, of Barrow, was appointed by the governor to the judgeship of the new Piedmont circuit, the people of that good section of Georgia have on the new bench one of the ablest, best men in the state, an able lawyer and a Georgian of progressiveness, honor, the right judicial temperament and the right spirit of leadership.

It will be recalled that Ex-Senator A. O. Nix, of Lawrenceville, was at first appointed, but Senator Nix preferred not to leave his very lucrative law practice.

The appointment of Senator Nix was received with unbroken approval, for he is one of the ablest lawyers in north Georgia, an able, firm, courageous advocate of the right. His dedication of the honor, however, opened the door for Louis Russell, and his appointment is no less pleasing.

Senator George has appointed Miss Sarah Orr, of Laurens county, his private secretary, and it is understood that the son of Senator Nix will be made his assistant secretary to take the place of Miss Orr before her advancement.

Miss Orr holds the distinction of having been secretary to three United States senators from Georgia in a few months first as secretary to Senator Watson, having been then advanced upon the resignation of John L. Kelly, of Lawrenceville, and then of Mrs. Felton, this service lasting only for a few days, of course, and now of Senator George. She is one of the most capable young women at the national capital, and as full secretary to a senator holds one of the most responsible positions.

Talking about private secretaries to senators, teaching high judicial honors, with the appointment of Judge Louis Russell there are now four prior court justices in Georgia that have but recently graduated from that school—Judge Shurly was until 1910 the secretary to Senator Thomas W. Hardwick.

As for that matter, however, United States Senator Harris was secretary to Senator Clay. The vice chairman of the public utilities commission, Colonel John T. Boileau, was secretary to Senator Bacon—and so on. It's a good stepping stone.

I notice my friend, A. J. Perryman, representative from Talbot county, will be a candidate for solicitor of the Chattanooga circuit. Here's hoping! The legislature has no more brilliant nor conscientious member, or a harder worker along really constructive lines.

Perryman has the distinction of being lawyer, banker, civic leader and—newspaper editor. He is one of the most enthusiastic members of the State Press association, always regular in attendance, and always full of progressive thought and talk, so much so that he is generally on the convention programs.

As an editor he shines brightly, for people have confidence in his views.

From Rome Chamber of Commerce.
Editor Constitution: I am greatly impressed by Mr. Holloway's article in yesterday's Constitution—"Don't Do It, Governor." He is entirely right on every line of this constructive piece of literature. I want to congratulate him and the Constitution on this position.

Mayor Sims of Atlanta.
Editor Constitution: I wish to congratulate you on Mr. Holloway's article, which appeared in The Constitution of the 20th instant, under the caption of "Don't Do It, Governor." I endorse everything said by you are absolutely right, and you could go a step further and say and tell the truth, that if the amount of taxes collected by the state were expended as it should be, instead of wasted, that the state could have enough money to pay all of its expenses and not be behind in any of its payments. The trouble with the state government is that there is too much extravagance in practically all of the departments, and the people are not getting value received for the amount they already pay instead of increasing it. What Georgia needs is a good house cleaning, and get the expenditures cut down to its reasonable expenses, and the people are getting value received for the amount they already pay instead of increasing it.

I hope that you will continue your fight in the interest of the taxpayers, and let me assure you of my best wishes in your efforts.

Not Necessary.
Editor Constitution: I read with a great deal of interest Mr. Holloway's article in the Atlanta Constitution regarding the extra session of the legislature, and I feel that he is absolutely right in the views taken and agree with him fully.

I believe we have sufficient laws, but the trouble is the officers are negligent in their duty and fail to enforce the laws already on the statute books. Would suggest that the tax collector and tax receiver be one and the same man, working on a salary, and be appointed by the governor. Then with an amendment to the constitution fixing an income tax on the salaries men believe we would have things in pretty good shape.

HEALTH TALKS
BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
(Copyright, 1923, for The Constitution.)

HARD WATER AS A BEVERAGE.
The hardness of water is due to the presence of soluble salts of calcium (lime) and magnesium chiefly. These salts form a curd with soap instead of a lather, and therefore, waste soap. Boiling removes what is called "temporary hardness," which depends on the calcium and magnesium salts held in solution by carbonic acid gas which is driven off by boiling. "Permanent hardness" depends on sulphates and chlorides of calcium and magnesium, and is not affected by boiling.

Rain water is soft. Surface waters are usually not very hard. Ground waters are likely to be quite hard. Waters drawn from limestone regions are not necessarily hard, especially if the catchment area from which the water has come is mountainous and barren, for it is largely from decomposed organic matter in the soil that the carbonic acid gas is derived, which is needed to dissolve out the lime from lime rock. Ground or spring water is hard water, and the harder it is, the more likely it is to be hard.

Besides wasting soap—before the soap will make a satisfactory lather with hard water, enough soap must be used to decompose the lime and magnesium compounds which cause the hardness—hard water is somewhat irritating to the skin and causes much trouble in boilers. Soft water is preferable for cooking vegetables. Hardness is of no great importance from the sanitary standpoint, except that it tends to discourage cleanliness, makes it so much harder to have a clean shirt or a clean skin. But nowadays the chief danger of hard water is the waste of soap in softening outfits which take care of the problem in home, industrial plant or institution.

Hardness is not an objectionable feature in water for drinking purposes. If the water is pure (free from pollution) and satisfactory in taste, it is hardly a possible even a desirable feature, for, according to modern studies of human nutrition, the ordinary diet of American town and city dwellers is more often deficient in calcium (lime) than in any other chemical element (not excepting iron); the body can utilize the lime of drinking water if it is a shortage of lime in the food. An adult's body contains about three pounds of lime; a minimum daily ration of 10 to 15 grains of lime in the natural food form is essential to health.

An adult's body contains more than a hundred pounds of water; one in health requires an average daily ration of two quarts of drinking water, besides something over one pint taken as a chemical constituent of solid foods.

A shortage in the daily calcium or lime ration is likely to entail serious impairment in health, but a surplus of calcium or lime, if it is not excessive, could be of small consequence, so that no one need worry about drinking hard water if the water is free from pollution and taste. Soft water is practically distilled water—water which has been evaporated to vapor and condensed—and wholesome for drinking, though it is not as palatable as hard water. The taste of water is naturally imparted by the mineral matter; a person accustomed to hard water finds soft water unsatisfactory. Travelers sometimes suffer from sudden change from hard to soft, or from soft to hard water. This discomfort lasts a day or two, and is the only undesirable effect attributable to the drinking of hard water.

Q.—Is lime that has been exposed to the air for any length of time good for whitewash or fertilizer?
A.—No, after long exposure it loses its value as fertilizer, and is good for whitewash or fertilizer.

Q.—What is the description of the poke weed?
A.—A large plant, branching widely, and with large, glossy leaves and stiff bunches of white saucer-like flowers, succeeded by dark purple berries, which are occasionally used for the making of a strong, acrid, and rich shades of red and purple. These stems are violently poisonous.

Q.—What is the area and general description of Tahiti? What are the living conditions there?
A.—The island comprises about 600 square miles, consisting of two unequal and nearly circular portions connected by a narrow strip of land. The chief town is Papeete with 4,601 inhabitants, of whom 2,126 are French. The island is mountainous and picturesque, with fertile soil and abundant bearing bananas, oranges, coconut, sugar cane, vanilla and other tropical fruits. The chief industries are the preparation of copra, the raising of the New Zealand company has a monthly service connecting San Francisco, New Zealand and Australia with Papeete. Hotel accommodations are hard to get; in fact, there are few places to stop. A furnished house may be rented. Living amounts to about $25 a month. The climate is not the climate for an invalid, as the drainage is poor, and the nights cool and damp. Otherwise it is found delightful.

A.—The bureau of standards says that glass of various colors is gathered in layers on a rotating rod. The glass is then drawn out and cut off in small pieces, after the manner of drawing fudge.

Q.—What is the cause of the Cape Disappointment?
A.—The cape at the mouth of Columbia river in Washington, was named by John Meares, the English navigator, who thought no river existed in the region.

THE MINARET
OF MINIATURE MASTERPIECES

History has failed to record a tribute such as that paid today to Sally Sallies, the titanic, coiffed poetess of Rabun Gap, for with one accord the poets of The Minaret have taken pen in hand to extol her virtues.

Sally evidently inherits the talent which has made her the Sappho of the storm-swept crags of North Georgia, for Pa Shingles, himself, writes a preface warning in a few strong lines that show he, too, is a master of limpid verse. From this the tributes to Sally Sallies, by Arthur Codrington, who becomes no less than dithyrambic in her praise.

It is true that there are a few who seem to cast light reflections on Sally, one claiming that she belongs to a tower other than The Minaret, while another intimates that she worships Lady Nicotine with rites which could hardly be called aesthetic.

But these slurs at greatness aside, we repeat that no such literary event as the Sally Shingles symposium has ever before been chronicled.

Dear Ed:
I met myself down
On a rock on the ground
Tow rite you a few warm lines.
From the top of a hill
Fanned the breeze a little Where everything is still
'N the moonshining moonshiner's moon shines.

My red-headed gal
Is a pore innocent gal—
'N new ter the ways up the city;
Be faster in her heels on the floor
Don't rattle her fur,
Fer she's wile when she's riled,
'N she's grilly.

When she leaves the slanty
Ter cum ter Atlanta
I'll be right behind on her trail;
'N if you see her, tell her
'N if you don't wed—
I'll see if ye land up in jail.
(That is if Sal leaves enuff
To ye to put in jail.)

'Bout 4 mile from Rabun Gap,
August 20th, this year.
'So you desire to know my son-in-law?
I said the father.
'No, I don't, but if I marry your daughter,
I don't very well see how I can get out of it,' returned the young man.

—H. Coleman Hall.

A PIPE DREAM
(The Poem on Sally.)
I think I know that Sally Jane,
Who is giving me a terrible pain,
She's locked in here for peddling cocaine.
—R. A. R., Cell 28, Fulton County Tower.

'Johns, I married your father because
He was a pore innocent gal,
'N bet that's why daddy's always telling me not to go in swimming.'
—Mrs. Victoria Brown.

Channing Milk.
Is it harmful to change milk we feed the baby, for a few days at a time, in hot weather?—Mrs. P. W. G.
Answer—For such emergencies it is advisable to hold the milk five minutes, if it is better to have pure, fresh, raw milk for the baby ordinarily.

Temperature.
My afternoon temperature is 98.8, sometimes 99; the morning temperature is 98.2 or 98.4. Does this afternoon rise indicate early tuberculosis?
Answer—No, it is normal; that is, the body temperature in health normally shows about that variation.

Mosquito Bites.
I have about a hundred mosquito bites and wonder if you have a remedy for them?—Fern D.
Answer—Touch each bite with a bit of wet soap, with a drop of aromatic spirits of ammonia, or with a little tincture of iodine. Or bathe the skin with a solution of a tablespoon of household ammonia in a basin of water, or a handful of saleratus (soda) in a basin of water.

Removal of Hair.
Is it harmful for women to remove hair from the armpits?—L. L.
Answer—No, provided the agent acting for the hair removal is not

Q.—Where were Alla Nazimova, Olga Petrova and Anna Pavlova born?
A.—Alla Nazimova, at Tallin, Crimea, Russia; Olga Petrova, at Warsaw, Poland; Anna Pavlova, at Petrograd, Russia.

Q.—Is lime that has been exposed to the air for any length of time good for whitewash or fertilizer?
A.—No, after long exposure it loses its value as fertilizer, and is good for whitewash or fertilizer.

Q.—What is the description of the poke weed?
A.—A large plant, branching widely, and with large, glossy leaves and stiff bunches of white saucer-like flowers, succeeded by dark purple berries, which are occasionally used for the making of a strong, acrid, and rich shades of red and purple. These stems are violently poisonous.

Q.—What is the area and general description of Tahiti? What are the living conditions there?
A.—The island comprises about 600 square miles, consisting of two unequal and nearly circular portions connected by a narrow strip of land. The chief town is Papeete with 4,601 inhabitants, of whom 2,126 are French. The island is mountainous and picturesque, with fertile soil and abundant bearing bananas, oranges, coconut, sugar cane, vanilla and other tropical fruits. The chief industries are the preparation of copra, the raising of the New Zealand company has a monthly service connecting San Francisco, New Zealand and Australia with Papeete. Hotel accommodations are hard to get; in fact, there are few places to stop. A furnished house may be rented. Living amounts to about $25 a month. The climate is not the climate for an invalid, as the drainage is poor, and the nights cool and damp. Otherwise it is found delightful.

UNIFORM FARES FOR PASSENGERS

The Georgia public service commission will shortly issue orders to railroads operating in the state requiring them to assess a uniform charge against passengers who fail to purchase tickets, it was learned Wednesday.

HOW TO GET RID OF CATARRH

A Simple, Safe, Inexpensive Method That Clears Out the Head, Nose and Throat.

There is no disease more offensive or disagreeable, or no disease that will lead to as much serious trouble as catarrh. You can now get rid of it by a simple, safe, pleasant home remedy discovered by Dr. Blosser, a catarrh specialist.

Dr. Blosser's Remedy is composed of medicinal herbs, flowers, and berries, which you smoke in a dainty pipe or cigarette.

The smoke-vapor is inhaled into all the air passages of the head, nose, throat and lungs and carries medicine where sprays, douches and salves cannot possibly reach. Its effect is soothing and healing and is entirely harmless. It contains no cubes or tobacco, and may be used by women and children, as well as men.

If you suffer from catarrh, asthma, nasal deafness or are subject to frequent colds, get from any drug store a convenient pocket size package of Dr. Blosser's Cigarettes and prove for yourself their pleasant, beneficial effect.—(adv.)

Gasoline Price Cut Seven Cents Due to Citizens

Winchester, Va., August 22.—A reduction of seven cents per gallon in the retail price of gasoline was announced here today by the largest local dealer handling Standard Oil company products exclusively. The new price is 20 cents per gallon for standard test gasoline, the figure established by a citizens' committee, headed by State Senator Harry F. Byrd, which is distributing a carload of gasoline purchased at 14 cents wholesale through several small retailers.

Although no other price cuts were announced today, it is expected that other dealers will meet the reduction. Senator Byrd said today his committee had options on more tested gasoline at 14 cents, to be retailed at 20 cents, after paying the special state tax of three cents and allowing retailers three cents for cost of distribution and profit.

Gasoline was selling here at 27 and 28 cents per gallon until the citizens' committee purchased a carload and began selling it at 20 cents. The committee purchased last week, when several of the large oil companies announced drastic price reductions.

Visitors from Afar Attending Revival

Visitors from all over the eastern and middle-western sections of the country are coming to Atlanta to attend the revival meeting which is being held at the Gospel Tabernacle, it was stated Wednesday by members of the evangelistic staff. The various phases of healing will be given by the evangelist during his services here. B. B. Bosworth, brother of the evangelist, is directing the special choir, and the brothers give a cornet and trombone duet at each evening service.

A prayer meeting is held each morning at 10 o'clock while the regular evening service, part of which is devoted to healing services for cripples, starts at 7:45 o'clock.

"Good," said Mr. Bosworth, Wednesday, "in regard to healing are just as positive as in regard to stealing."

"Sinners are not the will of God. You may be surprised, but if you will go through the Bible you will find in every case that Jesus healed every one who came to him."

"Sickness in the Bible is called a curse. In Deuteronomy you will find a long list of named diseases which were sent upon a disobedient people. The will of God, then, Jesus healed His Father by healing all the sick who came to Him. If God wants you to be sick, it is a sin to oppose Him and try to get well, and if Jesus is true, doctors are breaking the law and trained nurses are defying the Lord."

If you think that God caused you to be sick, you should consider your sickness a blessing and instead of trying to get well, you ought to seek the second blessing. If He has blessed you with a cancer, you should want Him to bless your husband or your wife with one."

MASKED KLANSMEN ROUTED BY MEMBER OF MONROE CHURCH

Monroe, La., August 22.—Three klansmen, garbed in masks and robes, were routed by a member of the church Monday night when they marched down the aisle of the Baptist church at Tullahoma, Tenn., for the purpose of giving the evangelist in charge of the revival a donation, it was learned here today.

When they were almost at the pulpit, Dr. E. L. Cahane, a physician, rose to his feet and dived for the hooded figures. There was a wild scramble of arms, legs, hoods and robes. Masks were torn off and the klansmen fled hurriedly, leaving behind parts of their costumes.

The congregation remained quiet and did not join the combatants. After the visitors had departed the physician returned to his seat and the preaching was resumed.

The klansmen were said to have been recognized.

STRONG DEFENSES NEEDED ON PACIFIC DECLARES VINSON

Brimerton, Wash., August 22.—Declarations that the United States must strengthen its defenses on the Pacific ocean were made by members of both major parties on the naval affairs committee of the house yesterday.

"We must make the Pacific coast a Gibraltar," said Representative Carl Vinson, democrat, Georgia.

"Savannah, Ga., August 22.—(Special.)—The A. M. E. C. E. League and Sunday school delegates, A. M. E. Church of Georgia, convened in St. Phillips church, Hull street, today. Large delegations came last night and today from every part of the state.

Drs. C. A. Winfield and C. L. Williams are handling the program, directed by Bishop J. S. Flipper, head of the A. M. E. church in the state. Presiding Elder J. T. Wilkerson, of Athens district, was elected secretary-in-chief with five assistants.

The committees were appointed from the various annual conferences and presiding elder districts. The devotional exercises were conducted by Drs. R. H. Singleton, J. A. Lindsay and R. H. Ward. The exercises were interesting and included prayer for the president of the United States.

The mapped-out program will take the convention through Sunday night. A program will be carried out Tuesday night by members of the convention, which portrays the progress of the negro race during the past fifty years.

Some of the best trained persons of the colored race are taking part—teachers, preachers, doctors and lawyers. Katherine D. Tillman wrote the first of the interesting stories concerning the negro and his progress under freedom.

Drs. J. A. Hadley, J. H. McFarlin, H. D. Canady, J. A. Lindsay, W. O. P. Sherman, Jr., W. J. Williams and L. A. Townsley were the floor leaders in the organization. A. M. Blossom, Lillian L. Beavers, B. L. Williams, Nellie Lindsey and John H. Lewis are leading figures in the program.

Bishop Flipper requested Dean W. G. Alexander to hold the funeral of Professor C. Max Manning, on Thursday and bury him in Augusta Friday. Thousands of negroes are attending the convention.

FIXES TEAR GAS BOMB FOR USE ON BURGLARS

Chicago, Ill., August 22.—Professor W. Lee Lewis, of Northwestern university, inventor of Lewisite and other high explosives and deadly gases used in the world war, announced today that after three visits from burglars he was tired of being robbed. He has equipped his home with a burglar alarm attached to a tear gas bomb.

As soon as a window is raised or a door opened, the bomb drops to the floor," he explained, "and I have added a booster charge to make it explode so that it will reach every corner. Our sleeping porch is closed from the house, so the family is in no danger. All I have to do when the bomb goes off is to call the police and tell them to bring an ambulance."

MONKEY RUNS AMUCK AND BITES OLD WOMAN

New Orleans, La., August 22.—A pet monkey escaping from his cage in a Howard avenue home yesterday ran amuck in that neighborhood and wound up his frolic before being captured by attacking a 70-year-old woman, biting her severely on one hand and almost completely tearing off one of her ears.

Move to Make Warehouse Paper Easily Negotiable

A national movement to bring warehouses under the United States warehouse act with a license from the federal government is under way, with special emphasis in the southeast, it was announced Wednesday by Governor M. B. Wellborn, of the federal reserve bank. The new features of the warehouse act became a law with the passage of the amendments of Senator W. J. Harris, of Georgia.

The American Farm Bureau federation has advised Senator Harris of its interest in the legislation and expressed approval of the amendments. The federation has sent a copy of the Harris changes to every county bureau in their organization.

Governor Wellborn has announced that the federal reserve bank gives preference to cotton stored in warehouses licensed under the warehouse act, and Robert F. Maddox, president of the Atlanta National bank, expresses the belief that the clearing house associations in the larger cities of the south should have the matter brought to their attention, and they should lend their efforts to encouraging government bonded warehouses.

Governor Prepares to Call Extra Session of Assembly

Governor Clifford Walker is making preparations to issue his call for an extraordinary session of the Georgia general assembly within the next several days, it was announced at the executive department Wednesday. The assembly of the session will be fixed for the early part of November, the governor said.

When asked if there was any possible "chance of the extraordinary session not being held," the executive replied there was none.

The call already would have been issued had there not been other important matters demanding immediate attention," he continued. "I have been reading and signing bills since the assembly adjourned last week in addition to other work. The contents of the call require careful consideration."

Appointment of a special commission to study the tax problem and report to the legislature this fall will not be made until next week, the governor said. This commission will be composed of members of the house and senate and citizens representing farmers, bankers, manufacturers and merchants. The governor has several names for appointment under consideration, but has not made them public.

In addition to studying the tax problem, the commission will be asked to make a budget, showing in detail the needs of educational and eleemosynary institutions of the state and to make a ten-year program of construction and maintenance "which will place these institutions in line with the progressive states of the union."

The call for the extra session, said the governor, will designate the tax problem as the chief and only subject for consideration. In this subject will be included a request for repeal of the tax equalization law and the passage of measures to create another system of taxation, he stated.

MR. AND MRS. WILSON CALL ON MRS. COOLIDGE

Washington, August 22.—Former President and Mrs. Wilson were among the first to call at the white house today to leave their cards for Mrs. Coolidge, the new mistress of the executive mansion. Neither the president nor Mrs. Wilson left their automobile and their cards were taken in by one of the white house attendants.

Papal Princess Dead.

New York, August 22.—Princess Spottiswood-Mackin, one of the few American women elevated to the papal peerage, died at Harrison, N. Y., yesterday at the age of 73. She was the widow of James Mackin, who was a state senator, and the daughter of the late James S. Britton, of St. Louis. She was a convert to Catholicism and was prominent in charitable work. She was given the title of princess by Pope Benedict XV.

ORLANDO IS SELECTED FOR KIWANIS MEETING

Orlando, Fla., August 22.—Orlando was this afternoon selected as the 1924 convention city of the Alabama-Florida district Kiwanis clubs by that organization now in session at Huntsville, Ala., according to special dispatches here this afternoon.

Named for Coolidge.

New Orleans, La., August 22.—Calvin, Frank White, 9-day-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Gustav L. White, is the first child born in New Orleans to be named after President Coolidge. He is the second child of Mr. and Mrs. White to be named after a president of the United States, his brother, Warren, 20 months old, having been christened after the late President Harding.

The father said although he had christened the baby merely "Calvin," it was intended that the child was the namesake of the president.

ACCOUNTING OF STOCK IS ASKED OF SAUNDERS

Memphis, Tenn., August 22.—The Piggly Wiggly corporation today filed a bill in United States district court here demanding of Clarence Saunders, former president of the corporation, personally and as head of the Piggly Wiggly Investment company, an accounting of class A stock sold through the investment company and seeking an injunction to restrain Saunders from disposing of any money or notes received from the sale of such stock.

The bill, signed by John P. Bullington, vice president of the corporation, who was named as temporary executor of the concern when Saunders resigned last week after filing a petition in federal court asking the appointment of a receiver, alleges that the books of the investment company are in such shape that an audit has failed to show what part of the stock purchased belonged to Saunders and what part to the company or to whom or at what price it was sold.

The bill charges that the books do not show where the stock now is nor are there stocks, notes or obligations in the treasury.

The allegation also is made that a large amount of stock which belonged to the corporation was sold for other than the full value of the stock and that the proceeds of the sale were used for the payment of part cash and part notes was taken and assets of the corporation of an unknown amount now in the hands of Saunders or the investment company, representing different payments for the stock.

This development in the affairs of Piggly Wiggly, which have been in the limelight for several months as a result of Saunders' venture into Wall street last April at the head of a "pool" to combat short selling of the stock of Piggly Wiggly Stores, Inc., came on the eve of the calling in federal court of the petition filed by Saunders asking the appointment of a receiver. The receivership proceeding is expected to be taken up next Friday.

Saunders also has announced that he would prepare an exhaustive letter addressed to the stockholders of Piggly Wiggly stores relating to his administration as head of the organization and the events which brought about his retirement from the presidency.

Rookies to Play Ball for Shrine Child Hospital

Baseball fans of Atlanta who like to see an abundance of hitting and base-running may prepare for a feast of that brand of ball, if the advance dope is correct on the game to be played at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon on Ponce de Leon grounds between teams from Yaarab temple of Atlanta and Zamora temple of Birmingham. Manager Frank Heynolds has ruled out all of the real old timers who romped on the ball lots in the days when masks and gloves were not, and is pinning his hopes to such brilliant clubs as "Bill" Stoddard, Potentate Gibson, Stewart Murray and "Doc" Heard, plus a lot of other youngsters.

Yaarab nobles are ready to bet their team can win, and now that Potentate Gibson has qualified for an infield position, they dare Potentate Mathews, of Zamora, to get on the Zamora team even if he has to use his authority as Potentate to do so.

A big Shrine parade will be held Friday evening at 5 o'clock in which all of the uniformed organizations and many nobles wearing fezzes will participate.

The proceeds of the game will go to the Scottish Rite Hospital for Crippled Children. In all probability the check will be handed to the treasurer of the hospital at a concert to be given by Yaarab temple band at the Howard theater at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon. This event was arranged by President Stoddard, Enrico Leide, director of the Howard theater orchestra, will be the conductor. All of the children and nurses from the hospital will be present.

Let 'Em Come. Birmingham, Ala., August 22.—(Special.)—Yaarab baseball team, accompanied by Noble D. E. McLendon, mayor of Birmingham, Potentate Mathews, Zamora Dyan and team mascot will arrive in Atlanta Saturday morning via Seaboard to wipe up Ponce de Leon field with Yaarab's ball team.

PELICANS SQUARE SERIES WITH BRUINS IN FINE GAME

Lefty Winn in Great Form And Blanks Mobile Bruins; Errors Aided Pel Scoring

Champions of 1922 Launch Threatening
Attack in Final Frame, But Winn
Settles Down, Winning 3 to 0.

Mobile, Ala., August 22.—New Orleans evened the series with Mobile by winning today's game, 3 to 0, through an excellent pitching effort on the part of George Winn, Pelican southpaw. Faeth also pitched good ball but teammates' errors and a wild pitch cost him the game.

First Inning.
New Orleans—Bogart walked. Knapp struck out. Henry grounded to Cuetto who threw to Niehoff, forcing Bogart at second. Tucker went out to Faeth. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Second Inning.
Mobile—Zeider flew out to center. D. Williams singled to left center. Winn went out on a high fly to Henry. Knapp threw out Huhn. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Third Inning.
New Orleans—Cuetto threw out. Winn fanned. Niehoff threw a smash through the box which Niehoff got back to center. D. Williams was under Schick's fly in right. Foss was out to Cuetto to Huhn. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Fourth Inning.
New Orleans—Knapp flew out to center. Henry flew out to Marriott. Tucker singled to center. It was New Orleans' first hit. Niehoff booted Ewald's easy roller. Tucker going to second. Mulvey was under Schick's fly. No runs, one hit, one error.

Fifth Inning.
New Orleans—Foss singled to left center. Mitze flew out to left. Winn sacrificed to Huhn. Ewald was out on strikes. Mulvey singled to left. Huhn flew out to center. Niehoff singled to center. Mulvey going to third. John Henry hitting for Marriott. Grounded to Ewald who threw him out at first. No runs, two hits, no errors.

Sixth Inning.
New Orleans—Cuetto went into deep short to take Knapp's roller and got him at first by a long throw. Henry singled to center, but was out at second trying to stretch the hit. Mulvey to Cuetto. Tucker was out to Huhn. No runs, one hit, one error.

Seventh Inning.
Mobile—Zeider flew out to center. D. Williams singled to left center. Winn went out on a high fly to Henry. Knapp threw out Huhn. No runs, one hit, one error.

John Dundee Has All to Gain in Leonard Fight

MARIETTA IS Vols Trade Geo. McQuillan To Mobile for Acosta

Mobile, Ala., August 22.—(Special.)—Marietta won a pitchers' battle with Milledge here this afternoon, when Doby White, of Milledge, weakened a bit in the sixth inning. The score was 5 to 1. The game was called in the last half of the seventh inning because of rain.

The feature of the game was the hitting of Cy Hawkins, of Marietta, who secured two hits out of three attempts. His two batters in the fifth inning with the bases full, was enough to win the game. Palmasino caught a neat game for Marietta, getting a run, and a hit in only one time at bat.

The work of Stewart and Haeffle who got two hits apiece was best for Milledge. The game was called in the last half of the seventh inning because of rain.

Marietta and Cartersville will play here Saturday afternoon. Each team has won five contests and lost five and the Saturday game is expected to be one of the best of the season.

Fats and Leans Tie.
Sparta, Ga., August 22.—(Special.)—Sparta baseball fans witnessed one of the most comical performances of the season yesterday afternoon when a game was played between "the fats and leans." A number of prominent citizens shook off their dignity for a few hours' amusement and this morning are almost unable to walk on account of soreness. The score resulted in a tie, 18 to 18. They expect to play off the tie one day next week.

Giants Get Stoner.
Knoxville, Tenn., August 22.—"Red" Stoner, Knoxville pitcher, and leading hurler of the Appalachian league, has been purchased outright by the New York Giants. The price has not been disclosed but is said to be a fancy figure for a class D player. He may report to the Giants this year and be carried on the bench for a while.

PEACHES WIN 9 TO 3.
Augusta, Ga., August 22.—Macon played rings around Augusta today and won the last of the series, 9 to 3. The Macon team showed quite a reversal in form in today's game, their batters drove Gillman from the mound in the early part of the game. Satterfield, who relieved him, fared nearly as bad. Augusta's runs were made on two singles and a triple. Satterfield pitched good ball for Macon and had only one bad inning. Manager Coffey's playing featured the game.

STATISTICS Featherweight Champion Has Fought Benny Leonard 5 Times in Last Few Years

Dundee Was Always Able to Give Leonard Great Fight in Spite of the Weight Difference.

BY ROBERT EDGREN.
Johnny Dundee has all the best of it in his match with Benny Leonard September 5. Johnny won't take a title into the ring, and Leonard will. If Dundee ever outpoints Leonard, according to the decision of two judges or one judge and the referee, Johnny will become lightweight champion of the world.

But if Leonard outpoints Dundee, or knocks him out, Dundee won't lose anything at all. It wouldn't destroy the reputation of the featherweight champion to be knocked out by the King of the lightweights.

Dundee started his quarrel with Benny Leonard in 1915, when the two aspirants of titles fought ten rounds with no decision, very little separating them at the finish. The next year Dundee and Leonard fought ten rounds and six rounds, still without much damage to either.

For a couple of years they let each other alone, apparently both being satisfied to pick easier victims. Then in 1918, when Benny was lightweight champion of the world, they fought twice, the net result being six and eight round contests without serious results. By this time Dundee and Leonard were well acquainted. The next year they boxed eight rounds without a decision.

The Scotch Wop's Hop Scotch.
Ever since Leonard became champion Dundee has been annoying Benny with loose talk about demanding a decision match. Leonard let him talk. The no-decision money was just as good as the bank. Benny Leonard's style was all this time there was no risk at all in boxing him without a decision. You never can be quite sure what two judges and a referee may do. Why be foolish?

This time, and for the first time, Dundee is to have his wish gratified, for the fifteen-round bout at the Yankee stadium is to have a decision attached.

Benny is one of the few boxers who have solved Dundee's hops and skips, his dodging and ducking, his elusive openings.

Benny can box Dundee in his own style. Benny is something of a hopper himself when he wants to be. Before he became champion most people said Benny jumped too much to have a punch. He boxes in several styles, all mixed up to suit the action of the other fellow.

When he boxes Dundee he skips around the ring like a waterbug on a puddle, until he has Dundee guessing, and then stops skipping and nails the Scotch Wop just when Johnny is holding out his chin to make Leonard miss by bobbing under the punch.

I'll Beat Him Sure.
For all that Dundee thinks he can beat Leonard, Wiley asked about it after the match was made Dundee said: "This is just what I've been waiting for. Leonard has dodged giving me a fight with a decision. I don't expect to find him as easy to hit as Crippl, but in the Crippl fight I think I showed I can put on a little speed when there's a title in sight. I'll do the same to Leonard. I'll beat him sure."

It's often noticed in Leonard's fights that the scrappers who knock him down or put him in real danger are knocked out themselves. Leonard saves them for future engagements.

The birds he can go along with for three or four or half a dozen matches and come out with a nice fat scrap, while Benny does the same. No decision bouts are best for this kind of fighting, of course. Sometimes judges and referees get all tangled up and hand out the wrong verdict.

Taking a glance over Benny's fights, there was Willie Ritchie's case. Willie, who had been out of the ring but had been active as an instructor at Camp Lewis, nearly knocked Benny out in the second round of a four-round bout in San Francisco, and gave the champion severe pasting.

A few months later Benny boxed Ritchie in New Jersey. Ritchie having come east on his honeymoon, Benny did his best to knock Ritchie out this time and came so near it that the referee stopped the bout a few seconds before the end of the last round, the eighth. Benny knocked Ritchie Mitchell and was knocked down for a nine-second count.

He did Mitchell for future bouts. Benny hasn't any further use for a man who can flatten him. He knocked Mitchell for a real, just as soon as his head cleared.

Benny Plans a Busy Year.
There was Charlie White, too. Leonard was knocked out of the ring by Charlie White at Benton Harbor, and White always claims that Benny couldn't have come back without the assistance of his seconds.

When Benny recovered he knocked White kicking. And he hasn't fought White since, although he has taken some contract dodging to effect that safety first proposition. Benny has been waiting for White to grow old and lose his punch and as it's rumormongered or Sunday's, except for members of the Ansley Park Golf club.

Prizes will be awarded to the winner and runner-up in each fight, the champion to receive a permanent cup in addition to the Willis trophy. Additional prizes will be given to the low gross scorer, low net scorer and high gross scorer in the qualifying fight.

Llewellyn Is Fined.
Spartanburg, S. C., August 22.—Manager Mike Kelly of the Spartanburg club of the South Atlantic association, and C. M. Llewellyn, Greenville pitcher, were fined $10 each in police court here today as a result of a personal encounter at the city auditorium on Friday night. Promoters of the bout have been assured by Young Stripling, of Macon, that the Macon youth will meet the winner of the bout in Rome on Labor day.

Because of this fact and because, too, the two men met once before and fought to a draw, the coming battle is attracting attention.

"Does your wife ever threaten to go home to her mother?" was asked of skippy little Mr. Meek. "No," he replied. "Not since her mother came to live with us."—Kansas City Star.

GENE POYNER OFF FOR BOUT IN HAVANA

Columbus, Ga., August 21.—(Special.)—Eugene Poyner, of Columbus, sterling little lightweight pugilist, left the city last night for Macon, where he will meet "Pa" Stripling, and from there will journey to Havana, for a main bout with the Cuban amateur lightweight champion.

Poyner won a home with the Cubans after he was seen in action with Stripling in workouts and in the semi-final bout. According to clippings the Havana fans are craving the pleasure of seeing him mixing his dukes once again.

Marshall-Kupchik Tie.
Lake Hopatcong, N. J., August 22. Frank J. Marshall, of New York, United States champion, and A. Kupchik, of New York, tied for first place in the master's tournament of the American chess congress. Both had scores of 10-1-2-2-2 at the completion of thirteen rounds of match play.

Happy Legs!
LEG happiness is largely a matter of garters. Most of all that tired feeling folks get comes from garter bind.

Ivories Won't Bind!
Ivory Garter is one garter that positively will not bind! Ivories fit and just hang on the leg without pressure at all! They don't have any hot, ready-shaped pads; no metal fasteners that have to be sewed on dead cloth. Every inch of an Ivory Garter is light, lively elastic and clean, white clasps. That's why they are preferred wherever men wear garters!

Prove It!
Try Ivory Garters yourself. Learn what they mean in real leg comfort. Every pair is absolutely guaranteed to give satisfaction! In all qualities, single grip, double grip, narrow and wide web, 35c and up. Ask for a pair!

IVORY GARTER COMPANY
New Orleans, La.

Important Directions!
You don't have to put an Ivory Garter on tight to make it hold up your socks. Just fit it loosely around your leg. Either one will do. There are no rights or lefts.

Then pull your sock up to meet the garter button. Clasp and learn for the first time the real joy of light, airy comfort that only Ivories can give!

Why Riverside draws boys from Illinois, Pennsylvania, Maine and fourteen other states.

During the 1922-23 session, more than 200 cadets were in attendance at RIVERSIDE from seventeen different states. The following are some of the reasons:

1. The U. S. Government separates the Military academies of the country into several different groups. RIVERSIDE is in the very highest class.

2. Academically, no preparatory school is ranked higher. Every member of the RIVERSIDE faculty is a college graduate with successful experience in teaching boys. Cadets and faculty officers live in the same building and eat at the same tables, with the consequent personal attention and rapid progress. Last year RIVERSIDE'S graduates were certified into sixteen American colleges and universities extending from New York to California.

3. RIVERSIDE'S high altitude, wonderful climate, unexcelled living conditions, and country location—in the midst of 2,000 acres of forest park.

4. RIVERSIDE has every facility for sport and recreation: Large athletic fields; three target ranges; tennis courts; gymnasium; golf course; large lake; high mountains, etc.

5. Every expense included in a flat rate for the year which covers board, tuition, laundry, uniforms, books, and a weekly allowance of spending money.

If seeking a school for your boy, write for a RIVERSIDE catalog and learn more of this nationally patronized institution.

Magic Change of Character "Dead Soldiers" Cause Sadness Lures Buyers to "Spieler" In East Point

STREET VENDOR IS PRINCE OR MENDICANT AT WILL

BY LOY WARWICK, JR.

Washington Hall, colored, age unknown, sells patent medicine. Insignificant as his establishment may seem, he has found success, simply because he used his head for purposes other than supporting a hat. Perched upon an improvised sidewalk stand, on Decatur street, several blocks distant from "Five Points," he cries his wares. He has done so for many years.

Washington continues to prosper, though he caters to practically the same people, in the same place, day in and day out. It is not known whether any of the miraculous cures his advertisements promise have ever been witnessed. But, nevertheless, all who hear, as a rule, buy.

Washington gives the gaping, wide-eyed, ebony-headed frequenters of Decatur street what they want. They buy him, and not his medicine. He is versatile, and though he sells the same product each day, he rarely ever appears as the same individual. With brown, indifference he declares himself a Hindu Nabal on Monday; on Saturday he will be found enacting a role as far distant and remote as larger beer at a Sunday school picnic.

Chameleon Transitions.

Those who have observed say that his ability to perform chameleon-like transitions from the dark, commanding guise and bearing of an eastern prince to the immaculate dress and rolling demeanor of a Senegambian dandy; and from the somber habits of an Ethiopian mendicant to the superlatively correct habiliments of a prosperous captain of finance, is the same to Washington Hall's obvious success in daily reaping rich revenue from the numerous "come-ons" who throng Decatur street.

Versatile Washington gives the "common herd" just what they want—something different.

In the role of some recently arrived prince he wears a vivid red turban, long black frock coat and an air of mystery. Incidentally he tells his listeners of his life and study in his native country. Of how after years of labor, he at last produced a liquid which he absolutely guarantees to cure anything from bunions to an abscessed tooth—or what have you?

Changes Role Again.

They swallow this spiel and go home with Washington's all-powerful fluid. A week later Washington will be found on his little stand, constructed of several more or less unsuspicious dry goods boxes, and gaudily decorated. But he is no longer a man of dignity or mystery. He has changed to a common street vendor, and he has lost his natural color. Possibly he will be strumming the latest edition of Decatur street blues on a banjo, eliciting the admiration of his listeners. They all know that as soon as he has drawn a sufficient audience with the seductive strains of his "box," he will begin telling of the marvelous medicine he is offering practically free to an unappreciative public.

Then Washington takes the role of an immaculate, dark-town dandy, and with pretty words and modern salesmanship sells his wares with the rapidity of hot cakes.

Washington has been on Decatur street a long time. According to all indications he will remain there an equally long time catering to those who chance to fall victim to his many ingenious devices, and oily vocabulary.

Washington Hall is an apostle of Barnum. He not only believes there is one born every minute, but he leaves "that he will come in contact with two every second of the day."

It is strange that Washington would choose a site so near police headquarters. But his right to it is never disputed, and Decatur street would be a total loss without his appearance.

LIST OF OFFICERS IS FOUND IN BAGGAGE OF ROGER SPERBER

Heidelberg, August 22.—(By the Associated Press.)—A list of American army officers said to have been found in the baggage of Roger Sperber, who was wounded during the recent attempt to kidnap Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, is published by the German newspapers which say Sperber told the police that he was some-what interested in the Bergdoll case.

The newspaper articles associate the 100,000 francs found in the possession of Hoover Griffith, the man who was wounded during the recent attempt to kidnap Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, is published by the German newspapers which say Sperber told the police that he was some-what interested in the Bergdoll case.

SHOUTING PERMITTED Recorder Rules Religious Fervor Not "Nuisance."

Shouting is still permitted as an expression of religious fervor, according to a decision in recorder's court Wednesday when Delia Jackson was hauled into court to show cause why she should not be allowed to move from Davis street. A petition of residents in that section called her a public nuisance because she was a member of a religious sect called the "Holy Rollers."

In dismissing the case, Recorder Pro Tem A. W. Callaway said that the recorder's court was not the place to decide religious differences. It was developed by the defense that Delia had been a witness in another case and that signers of the petition for her removal had been affected by an adverse decision as a result of her testimony.

LABOR CHIEF SEES WASTE IN SCHOOLS

trial labor body by electing officers to serve one year instead of six months, as at present, was adopted with the result that the presiding and other officers of the body will be elected at the last meeting in February, instead of twice a year, in June and December, as at present.

After hearing talks from advocates of the central park movement, a vote was taken upon a resolution endorsing the proposed bond issue. There were only a few delegates remaining in the hall and when the vote was put the resolution was lost 10 to 7. The Atlanta Federation of Trades, however, had previously gone on record as endorsing the central park plan and suggesting another method of financing the improvement. The failure of the resolution Wednesday night left the matter virtually where it stood. It was explained.

ELI MERCER BREAKS CELL LOCK, ESCAPES

Waynesboro, Miss., August 22.—Eli Mercer, 25, of Augusta, Ga., who with Clyde Benton, of LaGrange, Ga., and Sidney Griffin, a 13-year-old negro boy of Waynesboro, Ga., who were brought here from the first named Georgia city, charged with stealing automobiles, escaped from the county jail tonight.

He broke the lock on his cell and broke a hole through the jail wall. Sheriff William Crosby, who says that the escape had been helped by a reward of $50 for his capture.

INCREASE IS SHOWN IN RETAIL FOOD COST

Washington, August 22.—The retail cost of food averaged 2 per cent higher in July than in June, while during the year ending July 15 the general advance amounted to 4 per cent.

Figures made public today by the bureau of labor statistics of the department of commerce show that the average food cost for the year ending July 15 was 15 per cent higher than for the year ending July 15, 1922. The average food cost for the year ending July 15, 1923, was 15 per cent higher than for the year ending July 15, 1922.

Holloway to Speak

Professor Holloway, of Talladega college, will address a mass meeting at the colored branch of the Y. M. C. A. Sunday on the subject, "The New Awakening in the Program of the Church." He holds the chair of sociology at Talladega. Dr. Lawrence will preside at the meeting.

"Eliza," said a friend of the family to the colored laundrywoman, according to the Christian Evangelist, "have you seen Miss Edith's fiancé?" Eliza pondered a moment, then bent over the washbasin once more. "No ma'am," she said, "it ain't been in the wash yet."—Boston Transcript.

East Point, Ga., August 22.—(Special.)—The little town of East Point passed one of the saddest days in its history Wednesday when 261 quarters of "good red liquor" was disposed of, publicly, by the local officials.

Chief of Police Joseph William Miller was "master of ceremonies," and Captain P. J. Allen, city clerk, was the "official bottle crusher."

Many local citizens, and some visitors, gathered around the city hall to witness the "homicide" of John Bar-lewyn (only it was rum). So large and nervous did the crowd become that it was thought best to hold the police reserves in readiness to see that the "law be allowed to take its course."

It is understood that a doctor was in readiness to render first aid to any of "Old John's" friends who might suffer from an attack of heart failure at seeing their friend so "rudely" handled.

When Chief Miller announced that all of the liquor had been poured out and the bottles smashed, pent up emotions broke forth from many in the form of floods of tears as they slowly at the "good red liquor" was disposed of, publicly, by the local officials.

As is the case with every legal execution, several walked away with smiles on their faces, satisfied in their minds that the ends of justice had been met.

"John" was captured by Chief Miller's crew Sunday night, it is said.

L. &amp; N. OFFICIALS ARE ENTERTAINED BY MARIETTANS

The citizens' committee of the Marietta Chamber of Commerce, consisting of Ralph W. Northcutt, chairman; R. J. Hancock, Gordon Gann, mayor of Marietta; Dr. W. H. Kirkman, A. V. Gortney and J. C. Conway met the party of 17 L. & N. railroad officials on a "good-fellowship tour" at the railroad station Wednesday afternoon with seven automobiles and took them over the city and to points of interest throughout the county.

Following this, the party was entertained by a group of 40 representatives of Marietta at a dinner at the golf club. After the dinner a mass meeting was held by patrons of the L. & N. railroad who are interested in the tour.

Mayor Gordon Gann gave a short address of welcome to the party. Interesting speeches were made by J. J. Donahue, general claim attorney; H. P. Lively, general claim agent, of the L. & N.

Other officials of the road in the party are: J. J. Elder, executive assistant; E. A. DePue, general freight agent; J. W. Patterson, general passenger agent; J. J. Alexander, division passenger agent; H. H. McElroy, general freight agent; J. C. Kirkman, master of trains; W. P. Thompson, chief train dispatcher; G. L. Adams, road master; W. J. Mahoney, superintendent of bridge building; T. A. Aver, member of engineering; T. G. Strong, inspector of police.

BURGLARS HOLD FEAST Midnight Picnic Marks Visit of Mysterious Revelers.

After breaking into the store of L. N. Walker, of 542 West Peachtree street, burglars ate heartily and of the best Tuesday night as crumbs, empty tin cans and watermelon rinds indicated, and left the place, taking nothing more than the support of a midnight supper, a few sacks of flour and some soap with them.

The burglars entered through the rear window and spread their picnic on the meat block. No trace which would lead to the identification of the alleged burglars was found by officers who investigated the unusual occurrence.

SIMMONS TAKES STIGALL'S PLACE

est Stanton at the same time James was killed.

Maintains Silence.

In his cell at Fulton tower Stigall refused to discuss his case. He stated that he had entrusted all statements to his attorney, William Schley Howard. Mr. Howard declared that he was not prepared to make a full statement at the present, but declared that eye-witnesses to the shooting whom he had interviewed told a greatly different story from the statements that "have been given out to inflame public opinion against Stigall."

Plennie Miner and Marvin Baker, special investigators, have been assigned in the case by Solicitor Boykin to work in cooperation with men detailed by Detective Lieutenant T. O. Sturdivant, of the city police department.

ALLIED COMPRESS CHARGES "FRAUD"

clares that none of the petitioners has a provable claim against the Allied Compress company.

Not Obligations.

The compress company charges, "on information and belief," that the receipts on which the petitioners base their claims were never legally and lawfully issued by the company, nor authorized to be issued by this company, and are not valid, legal or binding obligations.

The company denies that any money whatever was advanced by either of the petitioners upon the faith of these receipts to the Allied Compress company. It is also denied that any cotton was stored with the company as a basis for the issuing of said receipts.

A denial of its insolvency is also made by the compress company, which sets forth in its reply that it is attaching a statement of certified accounts of assets and liabilities of the company of June 30, 1923, and declares that such assets and liabilities have not materially been affected since that date. The statement shows a net worth of $145,003.21.

A sample of the receipts referred to was attached to the company's reply. This receipt, the company declares, was not issued in the manner and form recognized and provided for in the warehouse act of the general assembly of Georgia; that the Allied Compress company is not a warehouse, nor authorized to do a warehouse business under the meaning of the Georgia law.

Miss Hull Weds Major Harris At Lovely Home Ceremony

Athens, Ga., August 22.—(Special.) A beautiful wedding took place Wednesday evening at the handsome old home of Mrs. Rosa Delaney Hull on Hill street, when her daughter, Miss Lilla Mae Hull, became the bride of Major Hunter Harris.

The entire lower floor and the spacious upstairs hall where the array of magnificent wedding gifts were on display were thrown open and adorned with an artistic arrangement of gorgeous flowers. The windows, doorways and walls bore a delicate tracery of smilax, and tall silver vases and baskets were everywhere filled with the loveliest of blossoms, the myriads of twinkling lights shaded in yellow glistering from the crystal chandeliers that were draped in smilax, the mantels and buffets in the dining-room outlined with white and yellow tapers, carrying out a color motif reflected by the lovely centerpiece of marigolds on the dining table.

In the living room the large double windows opening on the front, with their lace hangings, trellised in smilax and flanked with palms and ferns, intermingled with tall vases of lilies and white hydrangeas and silver candlesticks holding white lighted candles standing on either side as sentinels, made a most effective setting for the bride party which was unusually brilliant, owing to the beauty of the bride and her attendants and the striking appearance of the groom and the officiating minister, Chaplain L. D. Miller, of Fort McPherson, both attired in full dress uniforms, and Senator William J. Harris, of Washington, D. C., best man to his brother, in a suit of white silk.

The bride procession moved to the altar from the winding stairway through the dining room into the living room to the soft strains of the wedding march from Lohengrin, played by Miss Frances Bond, pianist, and Mr. Joseph Brockman, violinist, who rendered "Tausche's Evening Star" during the ceremony.

Lovely Bride.

The bride wore a white gown of exquisite loveliness, chignon beaded the entire length from neckline to within three inches of the lower edge with an intricate and lavish design in crystals and pearls, this shimmering model made etasit and confined slightly at the long waist line with a narrow crystal girdle, long ropes of pearls and crystals falling from the waist at each side to the edge of the skirt built over white georgette crepe, edged with silver lace. Her long tulle veil hung from a coronet of pearls caught in the back with a half wreath of orange blossoms enveloped her handsome figure as in a white cloud. Her flowers were roses and valley lilies showered with swansons.

Mrs. Harris was given in marriage by her brother, Delaney Hull, of Dublin, and attended by her sister, Mrs. Gordon Carson, of New York city, matron of honor, and her cousin, Miss Callie Hull, of Washington city, as maid of honor. Mrs. Carson was gown in a patterned chiffon beaded in rose and carried pink roses and valley lilies as did Miss Hull, who wore a blue chiffon. Little Misses Nell Johnson and Frances Northcutt, of Athens, and Rosa and Caroline Carson, of New York, in dainty orange frocks and becoming ribbons, held the ribbons which formed an aisle stretching from the stairway in the hall to the altar. After the ceremony and felicitations were extended the bride and groom, the guests were served an elegant supper, only the families and intimate friends being present, this number, however, making up a most generous party.

Mrs. Hull, mother of the bride.

Miss Martin And Boyce Worthy Wed Wednesday

Characterized by simplicity and dignity, the marriage of Miss Elizabeth Martin, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Ernest Martin, and Boyce Worthy, which was solemnized Wednesday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock at the Westminster Presbyterian church, was an event of cordial interest.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. J. W. Caldwell, Jr., pastor of the church, and was witnessed by only the immediate families and a small group of intimate friends. Tall baskets of Bermuda lilies, with a background of palms and ferns, formed the effective decoration of the church. Palms and ferns were banded against the chancel, while pedestal baskets filled with Bermuda lilies were placed at intervals and alternated with brass cathedral candelabra holding white unshaded tapers.

The bride's only attendant was Miss Marie Kuhn, of Nashville, maid of honor. Her gown of beige-colored georgette was heavily outlined with brown beads and she wore a picture hat of beige, the edges caught with lace. Her flowers were Columbia roses showered with lavender and purple asters. The bride entered with her father, Nathan Ernest Martin, by whom she was given in marriage, and was met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Charles Carter. Her blonde loveliness was accentuated by her wedding gown of brown satin fashioned in old-style effect, the front showing in plain line and the back designed with tiers of brown chiffon ruffles over cream chiffon, graduating from the bottom of the skirt to the waistline. She wore a small brown hat, the edge of which was draped with tulle and caught with pastel flowers. Her flowers were sweetheart roses outlined with summer blossoms in pastel shades.

Mr. Worthy and his bride left immediately following the ceremony for a motor trip to North Carolina. Upon their return they will be at home with Mrs. Martin's parents at 180 Oakdale road.

DAILY CALENDAR OF SOCIAL EVENTS

Miss Alice Greene And Mr. Sawtell Are Honor Guests

George Weyman was host at dinner Wednesday evening at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Weyman, on East Fourteenth street, in compliment to Miss Alice Greene and Richard Sawtell, whose marriage will be an interesting social event of September 12.

The spacious rooms were decorated with a profusion of garden flowers. The handsomely appointed table had as a central decoration a tall silver vase filled with mixed garden flowers. Silver candelabra holding unshaded pink tapers were placed at each end. The guests' places were marked by dainty hand-painted bridesmaid cards. Mr. Weyman was assisted in entertaining by his mother.

Mrs. Weyman wore a summer gown of white batiste embroidered in yellow. Miss Greene wore a dainty frock of blue Swiss combined with cream lace. Covers were laid for the members of the bridal party.

O. E. S. Chapter Has Tom Thumb Wedding.

Admission, adults 25 cents, children 15 cents.

Health Center To Be Held.

A baby health center will be held at Ira Street school Friday afternoon, at 2 o'clock. A nurse and doctor will be in charge.

Presbyterian Church Is Scene Of Lovely Morning Wedding

The wedding of Miss Lydia Brevard Mathews and Wayne Martin was solemnized with quiet dignity and beauty Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock in the North Avenue Presbyterian church.

Tall palms filled the chancel and altar and cathedral candelabra with white candles enhanced the simplicity and loveliness of the church decorations.

Long before the appointed hour of the ceremony the church was filled with a large company of interested friends. Miss Eva Bartholomew, at the organ, gave a program of beautiful music, playing the wedding march from Lohengrin as the bridal party entered and the Mendelssohn wedding march as the bride and groom left the altar.

Dr. Richard Orme Flinn, pastor of the church performed the ceremony. The ushers who were Comer Howell, William Hart Sibley, of Marietta; John Owens, Jr., and Waldo Mallory preceded the matron of honor, Mrs. Waldo Mallory, who entered alone directly preceding the bride.

The Matron of Honor.

Mrs. Mallory wore a gown of sand-colored georgette crepe, the skirt of which was tucked to the waist, which had a yoke of real lace. The kirtle was fashioned of French flowers falling gracefully at one side. She wore a hat of black lace, and carried a bouquet of garden flowers of pastel shades.

The lovely young bride entered with her uncle, Dr. Newton Craig, by whom she was given in marriage. She was met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Craig Mathews, the bride's brother.

The Lovely Bride.

The fair bride was charming in her demure wedding gown of midnight blue satin crepe, fashioned with panniers caught up with French blue velvet cords forming rosettes. The skirt had a hem of a corded puff in soft folds.

The bodice had sleeves with cavalier cuffs of rare Valenciennes lace in bands and frills. The jabot, on one side, was fashioned of the same lace. Her lovely hat was a French model, trimmed with shaded velvet roses and draped with navy blue lace.

She carried an old-fashioned nosegay in a lace holder, made of sweet heart rose buds, lilies of the valley and forget-me-nots starred with orchids and showered with silver ribbons.

Lovely Gowns.

Mrs. Maud Craig Mathews, the bride's mother, wore blue georgette crepe with yoke of lovely Bruges point lace. Her hat was of gray velvet and her corsage bouquet was of Parma violets.

Mrs. Theodore W. Martin, mother of the groom, wore a gown of blue Romaine crepe, trimmed in blue Spanish lace to match. Her hat was of black lace, trimmed in burnt roses, and she wore a corsage bouquet of Parma violets.

Mrs. A. E. Mathews, grandmother of the bride, wore a gown of black peau de soie, with collar and cuffs of rose point lace. She wore a bonnet of black malines.

Mrs. Richard Brackett, of Clemson College, S. C., the bride's aunt, was gown in black satin, combined with black lace. Her hat was of black satin.

Important Families.

The most cordial sentiment centers in this marriage which unites two of the south's important families. Mrs. Martin inherits from her mother, formerly Miss Maud Craig, a charm of manner and esprit which have won for her wide popularity.

On her maternal side she is connected with distinguished families of Virginia and North Carolina, being the granddaughter of the late Rev. J. N. Craig, D. D., of Virginia, an influential minister in the southern Presbyterian church, and of the late Mrs. Craig, who was, in her girlhood, Miss Lydia Brevard Harris, of Charlotte, and after coming to Atlanta attended the North Avenue Presbyterian school and graduated from Washington seminary and the Carnegie library school. She is a member of the Pi Pi society and of the Junior league.

Mr. Martin is a graduate of the Boys' High school and the University of Georgia, where he was a member of the Chi Chi fraternity. He is prominent in a business and social way, being connected with one of Atlanta's bond houses, J. H. Hilsman & Co. He is a member of the Nine O'Clock and the Capital City clubs. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore W. Martin, prominently known in Atlanta and formerly of Tennessee. His father, Mrs. Martin having been the lovely Miss Canter, of Winchester, Virginia.

If you have never worn a Betty Wales, remember that Betty Wales Dresses and Coats enjoy preference among grown-up girls and women who wish to look young, because they add to the pleasures of your everyday life by making you look smart. They help you to enjoy your studies and work. They enrich your personality and brighten your evening at the dance or party.

This special feature shows the twelve styles pictured above—all made of navy Poiret Twill—to be had in sizes 16, 18 and 20

—The very popular style consisting of the side-pleated skirt and detachable blouses makes this dress most serviceable. Fancy leather belt, crepe de chine collar and cuffs and a very small slit pocket in the blouse.

—The panel effect skirt is carried out with rows of silk braid from waist to hem. The square neck line is finished with embroidered linen collar and a little grosgrain ribbon bow and streamers.

—The Jenny neck and Florentine sleeve trimmed with Roman striped ribbon make this one-piece dress especially attractive. It has a large Roman striped ribbon bow at side.

—This is a one-piece dress which has for its trimming broadcloth collar and cuffs which are crossbarred with braid of contrasting color. Small pockets in skirt and narrow sash of self material.

—The lace collar and cuffs over ties of contrasting color make this frock really smart. The small pockets in the skirt are edged with the same color as the tie.

—This frock with its inverted pleat from neck to hem of skirt is irresistible. Flannel collar and cuffs with wool and silk embroidery. Pockets and lower part of skirt are trimmed with large bone buttons.

—Just a little different because of its short sleeves edged with wool embroidery in pleasing contrast, which also makes the pockets. Jersey to match edges the neck line and is used as inserts in both sides of waist.

—This one-piece dress is made specially smart by its insert of flannel embroidered in wool and silk, which is also used as trimming on cuffs. Silk braid is used freely starting at shoulder front and outlining the large open pockets.

—Exceptionally youthful is this one with its yoke and crepe de chine collar and cuffs. Self buttons used as trimming down the back from the neck to the waist line. Narrow sash of self material.

—Although the back of this dress is straight, in front the skirt is attached to the waist with silk braid in a pretty design and finished with buttons in contrasting color. Small slit pocket in waist. Finished with linen collar embroidered in silk and wool.

—The entire large pockets are trimmed with colored embroidered braid and the odd cuffs boast of the same trimming. The collar is finished with tiny metal buttons and the belt with a pretty buckle.

—And this one besides being serviceable can be worn on more festive occasions, for its attractive sleeves are slit and edged with multicolored braid. The Jenny neck is trimmed with the braid, together with small fancy buttons, which also start at the shoulder and end at the waist line, while the braid continues to the hem. Small slit pockets appear on waist and skirt.

A Problem Solved: "What Shall I Wear Right Now?"

321 All-Silk Tricosham DRESSES

10 Styles $12.75

Two Illustrated

ALL SILK, mind you, not fibre, fashioned on the latest fall lines, in the pretty browns, midnight blues and blacks of early autumn. Sizes 36 to 46.

Every woman is in doubt just now as to what she shall wear. "Too late" for summer—"too early" for fall, these are just the dresses for right now. We secured 321 of them at a very special concession from a manufacturer anxious to introduce his line through us, and they are priced far below what you'd ordinarily expect to pay for early season frocks of such superior silk, style and workmanship.

All dresses are becoming, straightline models, smartly tailored and very simply finished with faggoting, novelty braid, and sometimes with self-made rosettes at belt line. Some have round necks, others are square. Sleeves are three-quarter or full length, and skirts are gracefully long.

100 smart little All-Wool Jersey Frocks are included at the same price. These are in new fall models and colors; navy, black, gray, reindeer and red. Some are collared and cuffed with white hemstitched linen. Others feature knife pleating at bottom, on sleeves and pocket. They're frocks adored equally by the business woman and the young woman college bound.

Beautiful Luncheon at Club Honors Golf Participants

The all-champion golf match which will take place Saturday at East Lake for the benefit of the Atlanta Woman's club was given an auspicious send-off Wednesday at the luncheon which the club tendered in compliment to the participants, Miss Alex Stirling, Bobby Jones, Perry Adair and their instructor, Stewart Maiden.

Seated before long tables placed in the banquet hall, which were decorated with quantities of daisies, gold and glow and kinmas, more than a hundred club members paid tribute to Atlanta's champions and pledged their support to the match which promises to be the outstanding event of the year in local golf circles. The funds will go toward the notes due on the club's banquet hall.

Mrs. W. B. Price-Smith, chairman of the banquet hall committee, introduced Mrs. Lott Warren, Jr., and Mrs. Guy Woolford, who will distribute the tickets for the match at Brookhaven and Druid Hills, and Mrs. Charles Holmes Weaver, and Mrs. Arthur Hazzard, her co-chairman for the match.

Special tribute was paid Mrs. John R. Hordnady, the efficient chairman of publicity, whose efforts in handling this important phase of the club's work have won the appreciation of the club members.

The guests were received in the entrance of the club building by Mrs. Wilmer Moore, chairman of the hospitality committee, and Mrs. W. B. Price-Smith, chairman of the banquet hall committee.

Seated at the head table with the honor guests were Mrs. Norman Sharp, first vice president of the club, and Mrs. B. M. Boykin, former president.

Among the guests present were Miss Nora Stirling, Mrs. Guy Woolford, Mrs. Lott Warren, Mrs. J. R. Hordnady, Mrs. Murray Howard, Mrs. Norman Sharp, who had as her guests Mrs. Jacques Futrelle and Miss Virginia Futrelle, Mrs. Almona Richardson, Mrs. W. B. THE HOUSEHOLD Edited by Anne Rittenhouse.

GOOD SALADS OF EGGS. Now that eggs are plentiful, egg salad forms one of the best of the substantial luncheon salads.

Another good egg salad is made of hard-boiled eggs. Remember to cook the eggs just below the boiling point for half an hour to have them digestible, cut in half and laid on slices of tomato and half of egg lay a ring of a sweet green pepper, made simply by washing and slicing the pepper.

Another good egg salad is made of halves of egg whites from which the yolks have been removed, filed with diced beets and peas, and mixed with mayonnaise. Each egg half is propped up in lettuce leaves and the egg yolks are crumbled over the whole salad. More mayonnaise is passed.

Egg Rings. Cut the whites of six hard-boiled eggs into rings. Mix the yolks with a cup of mayonnaise. Arrange lettuce leaves on platter. Lay the rings on the lettuce. Heap the yolks, crumbled, in the center of each ring.

Daisy Salad. Four hard-boiled eggs, one-half cup of French dressing, two cups of shredded lettuce leaves or watercress. Remove the yolks from the eggs, cut them into halves, the long way. Cut the whites into narrow strips, and mash the yolks through a strainer. Put a little lettuce on each plate, place about a teaspoon of the yellow right in the center, and arrange the pieces of white around the yellow so as to make it look like a daisy. Serve with French dressing.

Weds Mr. Johnson

Tuesday Evening

Mrs. Mary McDonald announces the marriage of her daughter, Lula Belle, to Dewitt Johnson, which event took place at Wesley Memorial church, Tuesday, August 21, at 5:30 o'clock.

Rev. B. F. Fraser officiated. The bride was gowned in blue georgette with accessories to match. Her only ornament was a strand of pearls, a gift of the groom.

The bride entered the church on the arm of J. D. Bazemore to strains of Lohengren's Wedding March, played by Mrs. Boatman.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson will be at home at 68 Currier street after August 31.

BEAUTY CHATS By Ethel K. Parker

A RED NOSE. One of the most hopeless of facial troubles is a red nose. Usually it is due to some digestive disorder and can best be cured by the following treatment:

First of all, take an anemina, then for several days take tasteless oil as a laxative. Put yourself immediately on a diet, eliminating all heavy, rich, indigestible foods. It would be a good thing to stop eating meat, potatoes, cakes, cooked puddings, candy and iced or for a week or two, as these are all hard on the digestion.

Meanwhile make sure your clothing is loose, and that neither corsets nor shoes are tight enough to impede circulation. If the blood is congested an excellent treatment is to steam the nose. Also massage and tap it with the finger tips. This makes it more red for the time being, but it starts the blood and will cure the indigestion. Here is a well recommended ointment for this trouble.

Ointment for Red Nose. Powdered sulphur.....1 drachm Powdered starch.....1-2 ounces Zinc oxide ointment.....1-2 ounces Perfumed oil.....6 drops This makes a fairly large sized jar. Use half the quantity unless a red nose is severe.

There are some few cases where a red nose is not due to digestive troubles, but to some stoppage in the small blood vessels supplying the nose. The blood congests and does not circulate freely. Tight nose pieces or eyeglasses are responsible for much of this. The only thing to do is to remove the stoppage and get the blood flowing again. This is done by massaging the nose and tapping it as directed, extending the treatment well over the forehead and the cheeks. Finish up with a cold compress with an ice rub. This treatment dispels the congestion.

Hebe—I will be glad to mail you a formula for the lashes and brows if you will send me a stamped addressed envelope. Massage the scalp every day until you feel the invigorating effect result from a sluggish condition, from it, as oiliness or even dryness, which is improved if not corrected entirely by a healthy circulation.

Mrs. O.—It would be well for you to send for the formula covering this subject of caring for the bust. In the meanwhile dash cold water over it several times each day, following this with slight friction from a coarse towel. As you have used these drying preparations it will take a little more time for the bust to recover.

W. H. L.—Either butter milk or the juice from a piece of cucumber applied to the skin at night will help to remove the tanning from your daily outings.

Tomorrow—Blackheads. Four hard-boiled eggs, one-half cup of French dressing, two cups of shredded lettuce leaves or watercress. Remove the yolks from the eggs, cut them into halves, the long way. Cut the whites into narrow strips, and mash the yolks through a strainer. Put a little lettuce on each plate, place about a teaspoon of the yellow right in the center, and arrange the pieces of white around the yellow so as to make it look like a daisy. Serve with French dressing.

Uniform Divorce Impossible, Says Atlanta Woman Lawyer

Mrs. Minnie Anderson Hale, Atlanta woman lawyer, goes to Minneapolis to attend first annual meet of Women Lawyers' association August 28. Uniform marriage and divorce laws will be important subjects discussed.

BY MARTHA GOODE ANDERSON. When the first annual meeting of the Women's Lawyers' association opens in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Curtis in Minneapolis, Minn., August 28 Georgia will be represented by one of its few women lawyers, Mrs. Minnie Anderson Hale, who is one of Atlanta's leading attorneys with offices in the Atlanta National Bank building.

Mrs. Hale is deeply interested in the uniform marriage and divorce law, which will be one of the most important matters to be discussed at the forthcoming meeting, and which is a subject of the most vital interest to women throughout the land. Indeed, the proposed suggestion of a uniform divorce law is not only of interest to women, but is more than interesting throughout the entire country.

An address on this subject will be made by Mrs. Jean Nelson Penfield, one of New York city's most distinguished women lawyers. Other noted women speakers on this subject will be Marion Weston Cottle, of Massachusetts; Esther Antin, of Ohio, and Felice Cohn, of Nevada.

Mrs. Hale will also be one of the speakers in the discussion which will follow.

Domestic Relations Court. "Every state," she told me yesterday, "should have a domestic relations court, where marital questions could be considered and future divorces probably be avoided. Homes saved, children freed from the knowledge of parental unhappiness and the community generally benefited by reunited couples. While New York has only one ground on which divorce can be secured, Georgia has seven—far, far too many.

"Georgia's trouble lies," she continued, "as in so many other states, in that getting married is not made more difficult and getting unmarried is made comparatively so easy. Of course I do not mean that legislation will ever be the means of controlling human nature, as we have unfortunately learned since prohibition went into effect. If a uniform divorce law went into effect in the United States some of the existing in regard to universal prohibition would certainly ensue."

Unjust Marriage Laws. "The legislature should abolish the present divorce system in Georgia," she went on. "Why discriminate and require the divorce complainant to appear before two (2) separate terms of superior court and demand two (2) distinct divisions of jurymen to hear what they often relate to the honorable court in five minutes? Why block justice with such formalities of the divorce courts, while the marriage law in the ordinary court is of so minute importance? For the price of one dollar and seventy-five cents ($1.75), and within the time limit of thirty minutes, Georgia's marriage law permits the indiscretion of impulsive infant marriages.

"If such atrocious, illogical, and unjust marriage laws exist, as they now do, why make the undoing of the states error so intricate? The Domestic Relations Court would hear and deal relief to the 'social complaints,' awarding decrees upon proof of grounds set forth, handling all alimony and family adjustments. Such a court would bring permanent relief to Fulton county superior courts, who, by their innumerable divorce trials, are forced to delay and neglect important litigation that should come before the jurisdiction of a superior court.

Female Criminal Court. "The establishment in Georgia of a criminal court of exclusive trial of females, regardless of the age, would inspire a reform and a decency for which southerners cling, I believe," Mrs. Hale said in further comment. "Such a separate criminal court should provide in the same manner of procedure a justice and conviction together with the identical punishment prescribed for the male criminal of the state. New York city has such a court with a presiding woman judge, who alternates with the male barister and who admits to these trials a limited audience of adults.

"Georgia should and could revoke and regulate many laws now enforced that were written to meet the crossroad schedule of yesterday, while conditions today are forced to adjust and regulate their traffic by these old laws. Cataclysmic events, however, are sweeping away the old foundations and laying barriers low. Progress is attempting to raise firm superstructures where old ones lie in hindrance, trespass and ruins; progress will hold sway in the coming reform throughout the world of civilization. That Georgia will take cognizance of the reorganizations, and that great movement, slowly but irresistibly discarding old errors, rising and going forward in such gains as rank with the adequate courts of America and participate in the development of a future world court is hope," she concluded.

WHAT WOMEN WEAR BY ANNE RITTENHOUSE

Tam o' Shanters Are for the Many—the Tricorne or Marquise for the Few—Since Very Few Can Wear It. Give an equal start to the tam and the tricorne and you may be quite sure that the tam will win the race. So far the equal start seems to have been given, for both tricorne and tam have been shown by the milliners from whose offerings we are wont to select the hats we wear from season to season.

And even before the race has fairly begun, milliner experts in this country are predicting that the tam will run so rapidly into popular favor that it will run right out of favor with the elect. It is too generally becoming, too easy to wear, too easy and cheap to make.

On the other hand, the tricorne is never generally becoming. There are certain women whom it becomes and becomes enormously. So much so that when you see them wearing it you hasten to your milliner and bid her show you a tricorne. You put it on, but the chances are that you take it off again for good. "It doesn't seem to be very becoming," you say, and the milliner shrugs ever so little and shows no surprise. Being half-wise and woman-wise where hats are concerned, she knew from the instant you said "tricorne" that you wouldn't get one. That is, of course, unless you were an exceptional one in about a hundred to whom the tricorne is becoming.

Perhaps you prefer to call this hat a marquise, which is often used instead. The inspiration was given for a revival of this type of hat more than a year ago, when one of the spectacular balls in Paris attempted the reproduction of the costume of eighteenth-century Venice. The tricorne was again brought to fashionable attention at the great fete at Versaille, where the hats of the eighteenth-century French courtiers were displayed in marvelous pagentry.

This type of hat always seems to be lost in black—and in black velvet at that. It is not a hat that you can buy haphazard. All the proportions—the height of the crown, the turn of the brim, as well as the actual size of the hat—must be nicely adjusted to your face and head. Last year the tricorne was very often trimmed with a figured lace veil, sometimes with flowing ends. One of the best devices for trimming this season will be the use of pompons over the right ear, as shown in the hat in the sketch. However, there are very smart hats of the shape adorned with those queer little shaving brush-fancies that the milliners call "crosse negretes."

CORNERED BY HERD OF HUNDRED BUFFALO

Salt Lake City, Utah, August 22.—Cornered by an infuriated herd of buffalo in Death Pass, located on Antelope island, in the Great Salt Lake, a party of hunters last Monday escaped possible death until the herd was dispersed after four of the animals had been slain, according to members of the party who reached here early today.

More than 100 buffalo in the herd attacked the hunters, forcing them to take refuge in the pass, according to C. S. Beardslee, one of the hunters. Backed against a wall, the hunters took positions and emptied their rifles, four of the leaders of the herd falling in their tracks, he asserted.

CHAPTER LVIII. Larry Intervenes. Valerie Eaton looked into Gloria's room early the next morning. "Just wondered how the baby was," she said nonchalantly. "I'm going out for a minute—would you mind looking after him?" "Oh, not at all," Gloria exclaimed delightedly. "I'd love to. Are you going to take him away today?" "Yes," Valerie replied, almost curtly. "Yes, of course he'll go today." And then, as if ashamed of her own coyness, she came on more gently. "We really couldn't keep a baby here, you know."

"No, I suppose not," Gloria agreed. "But he's a darling. Where are his clean clothes?" "Why—he'll just have to wear the ones he had on yesterday; my brother didn't bring anything else with him—he was in such a hurry, you know."

"Funny that the nurse didn't think of them," Gloria reflected, as Mrs. Eaton closed the door behind her and hurried away down the hall.

She was breakfasting in the living room, with the baby on her lap, when Larry was announced.

"I came up early—was on the way downtown and wanted to see you for a second," he began before he was well in the room. "How about a ball game this afternoon? It's the Giants and—where on earth did you get the kid?"

Gloria explained the baby's presence and gave Valerie's story about it.

"Well, I—what did she say? Tell me again."

Gloria repeated Valerie's explanation.

"Well, of course, that may be—but see here, Gloria—did you ever meet this brother of Mrs. Eaton's? Ever hear anything about him before?"

"No, I always thought she hadn't any relatives," Gloria replied.

"I don't want to be suspicious without reason, but the infant son of Philip Brewer, the millionaire, was kidnapped yesterday and that baby looks to me exactly like the pictures of him. See here—!" and he opened the paper he was carrying and showed her a picture in the middle of the front page.

"Doesn't that look like him?" he asked. "What did he have on when he was brought here? Where are his clothes?"

"Why, he hadn't any, except these embroidered things he has on now."

"This child's clothes had all been made in some convent, and were embroidered so that anybody who knew 'em would recognize the things in a second. And this child certainly looks like the picture—he has the same queer set eyes that Philip Brewer has, too. Look at these photographs in the paper. It's the child that was kidnapped," Larry declared.

"But how did the Brewer baby happen to be kidnapped?" Gloria asked.

"Oh, it was a case of spite, partly, and also an effort to get money, of course. You see, when Philip Brewer was still in college he married a show girl—a girl straight out of the gutter, pretty as she could be, but as common as they make 'em. She was after his money and nothing else, and got a lot of it. She hated this child, but Brewer adored it; it looks like him, you see, and he thought a world of it. She got pretty wild, ran around with a lot of people, her own kind—not decent stage folks, but the lowest sort of crowd; the kind that if they get their names in the papers always get themselves actors or actresses, but probably never had an engagement in their lives.

"Brewer tried to make her leave up; used to buy her off every so often, and she'd take his money and promise to reform, and then the minute the money was spent she'd go back to her old ways again. She'd borrow money and run up a lot of bills, knowing that he'd come through and settle things when it came to a showdown.

"He didn't divorce her, because she was his child's mother, and he kept thinking that if he just stuck to her the time would come when he could really reform her. He figured that without him she'd be rolling in the gutter inside of six months. She was a dope fiend, you see. But finally she decided that she wanted to get married to somebody else. She really had fallen in love with some crook or other, and though everybody else knew that she was a case of spite, partly, and also an effort to get money, of course, she thought he really was in love with her. Brewer talked with the fellow, promised to take her out west and make her live the way she ought to. He made a fairly good showing, and she wept and raved about how much she cared for him, so a divorce was fixed up and Brewer made a big money settlement. That was when the baby was about six months old.

"But of course it didn't go through. The man cleared out with the money, and she came back here and began begging for more. Brewer saw at last that he couldn't do anything for her, but he gave her an allowance, which would be big enough for her Child-birth Here is a wonderful message to all expectant mothers! When the Little One arrives, you can have that moment more free from suffering than you have perhaps imagined. An eminent physician, expert in this science, has shown the way. He was he who first produced the great remedy, "Mother's Friend."

Mrs. C. J. Hartman, Secretary, 1000 Broadway, New York City.

"With my first two children I had a doctor and a nurse, and they had to use instruments, but with my last two children I used 'Mother's Friend' and had only a nurse; we had no time to get a doctor because I wasn't very sick—about ten or fifteen minutes." Use "Mother's Friend" as our mothers and grandmothers did. Don't wait, start today, and meanwhile write to Braden's Regulator Co., P. O. Box 46, Atlanta, Ga., for a free illustrated booklet containing information every expectant mother should have. "Mother's Friend" is sold by all drug stores everywhere.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

To Clean Gilt Frames. Warm water, to which household ammonia has been added, will clean gilt picture frames. Dry with cloth immediately.

A Different Perfume. Whole clothes sprinkled liberally throughout clothes that are to be packed away will answer the same purpose as moth balls.

To Heat Oven Quickly. If the oven of the coal range is not hot enough for a pie or biscuits, take one of the hot front stove lids, place it under the article to be baked and put them both in the oven. The front hole of the range can be covered with a kettle of water, and hot water will be forthcoming as well as goodies to eat.

Utility Notes. Apples will keep sound if packed in sawdust. Rust can be removed from knives by rubbing with a cut onion. A good-looking collar and cuff set will fairly rejuvenate the slightly-worn frock. A splendid furniture polish can be made at home by combining three parts of linseed oil with one part of turpentine.

REYNOLDS PAINTINGS HAVE BEEN PURCHASED

London, August 22.—One of Sir Joshua Reynolds' most famous paintings, "The Young Fortune Teller," and another of his pictures, the portrait of Viscountess Crosbie, have been bought from the collection of Lord Glen Conner by an American collector, says The Daily Express today. The name of the purchaser has not been made public.

"The Young Fortune Teller" was painted in 1775 and is regarded as one of Great Britain's choicest art treasures.

Scientific investigation of the migration of tuna fish and the food, temperature and salinity of the water to which these fish are partial, has begun in the Mediterranean and western Atlantic.

THE SOUL SCAR

BY BELDON DUFF

Next Week, "The Beautiful and Damned." By F. Scott Fitzgerald.

On the top floor, Natalie found twelve doors, twelve closed, unlocked doors. All led to bedrooms—all were empty—37—38—39—small brass numerals in need of polishing, but clear enough to be deciphered.

Yes; there it was. She had passed it without realizing that it was not a part of the stairway itself. There was not even a knob or a keyhole—a slight difference only in the panels—a grimy spot, the imprints of many fingers.

A moment of indecision—no gripping in the fear of the unknown—then, alive to full consciousness of danger, Natalie pushed softly.

"Sh!" A warning whisper.

The door cracked back, an inch at a time. A shadowy blur—the lips closed to the crack—one whispered word.

Natalie Mallinson's mouth opened, but no sound came. Her lips were stiff.

So this was the secret of the unnumbered room—a secret which left one helpless, impotent.

Long she stood in dazed silence. Then a cry came from somewhere outside the house roused her—a weird echo, faint, unreal, far-distant. But she had all she could attend to right where she was. Once more her hand sought the door of the unnumbered room.

On top of the hill behind the house, a small figure hopped with uneasy, restless steps, the thin shoulders straightened, the eyes kindled. The resentment she had been harboring for days flared into speech.

A few adroit questions, a little sympathy, and the thin shoulders straightened, the eyes kindled. The resentment she had been harboring for days flared into speech.

She had come from Manchester in answer to an advertisement for waitresses. Three days after her arrival, she had begun to feel queer—spots all over her—furry little blisters that itched.

Miss Pringle, with the help of Tillie, had transferred her from the maid's quarters to the room on the top floor, where they usually kept the extra furniture. It was done at night, quietly, for fear the guests would hear about it and leave.

The clerk and Bill, the chauffeur, had taken turns going to Lakeport for medicines.

Just when she began to feel better, Miss Pringle received a letter telling about an epidemic of smallpox in Manchester. The four—Tillie, Bill, Miss Pringle, Jones—were scared stiff.

The clerk, all right—she hoped she did have smallpox.

The tedium of convalescence was relieved by spying on the guests from an upper window or by clandestine excursions down the stairs to find out what had happened since her illness.

The night of the storm, the room on the top floor became unbearable. The room leaked; a mouse gnawed something under her bed; the wind howled, and the music down-stairs bothered her. She could not sleep.

After every one had come up-stairs and she supposed the house closed for the night, footsteps in the lower hall had excited her curiosity—stealthy footsteps. The girl crept out of her room and half-way down the stairs.

A woman wearing a bright-red coat was in the lower hall. Something about this woman made the watcher more nervous than ever. She followed her to the door of the living-room. In there were two men—Jones, the clerk, and a small man with a black mustache. They talked a long time, she said. Finally, the girl admitted she had told Aunt Merilda that Bill had killed the princessman. And Miss Merilda had gone to the barn to find Bill.

CHAPTER XXV
At the Station.

The New York train thundered into Mink Harbor station as Jones raced down the cinder bed beside the track. A figure leaped for the Pullman.

"No you don't!"

With a burst of speed, the clerk reached the spot. His hand shot out; the figure came off the step with a jerk. It was Bill!

"Thought you'd get away, eh, and leave me to face the music? Some yarn you tried to stuff me with last night, you—"

The chauffeur tore free.

"Yarn?" he snarled. "Be damned to you! Look there!" He pointed to the party of the car.

A slender man, not above the average in height, with a thin, intellectual face and brown eyes, near-sighted without the glasses to which they were so evidently accustomed, was peering out from the vestibule of the Pullman. Jones fell back.

"You? Good God!"

Painfully, one foot dragging, the man hobbled down the steps.

"You seem surprised to see me here, but what of yourself?" he demanded. "How do you explain your presence?"

"All aboard!"—the conductor on the car ahead.

"Is you or isn't you?" inquired a dusky porter.

"Well," the clerk, his hand still on Bill's collar, looked at the man who had just jumped from the Pullman. "Now's your chance—decide!"

The man spread out his hands in token of defeat.

CHAPTER XXVI
Lucy's Story.

The mysterious unnumbered room was small. Lighted and aired by a meek silt in the wall, it contained an arm-chair, a chair, a wash-stand. On the side of the cot, her chin on her hands, her elbows on her knees, sat a girl. More dispirited than ill was the inward comment of the shrewd O'Meara.

A few adroit questions, a little sympathy, and the thin shoulders straightened, the eyes kindled. The resentment she had been harboring for days flared into speech.

She had come from Manchester in answer to an advertisement for waitresses. Three days after her arrival, she had begun to feel queer—spots all over her—furry little blisters that itched.

CHAPTER XXVII
The Unnumbered Room's Secret.

An hour later a gray roadster drew up before One Pine Inn. Its driver, a thick-set man in blue serge, topped off by a rowdy black-and-white checker-board cap, stepped out and mounted the stairway to the porch.

"May I come in?" the checker-board cap made a gallant semi-circle and, as his eyes rested on a girl standing in the center of the group, "What's the trouble, sister? Anything I can do?"

Natalie Mallinson never could understand what it was that made her turn to this stranger and fling her troubles on his lavender-silk shirt. He told all that had happened, ending with the disappearance of Miss Merilda and the flight of Bill and the clerk.

"You've brought your troubles to the right doctor, sister," he said. "I'm O'Meara—Tim O'Meara—O'Meara's Detective Agency—my card."

The part of her story that seemed to interest O'Meara the most was Jones. And, after that, the unnumbered room on the top floor. He made her go over what she had told him again, interrupting constantly with questions.

"You and me are going to get on like a pair of shoes, sister," he confided. "Let's go out and talk to this Miss Pringle, and then we'll be after finding your aunt. I doubt me if the good lady's far from the home plate. She's—"

A sneeze, an explosive, hastily smothered sneeze.

O'Meara thrust an arm out the window beside which they had been sitting and drew into view a plump, red-cheeked young woman. Without a word he assisted her over the sill, all arms and scrambling, sturdy legs.

It was Sammy Todd's sister, a waitress.

"Young woman"—the detective wagged his forefinger under the snub nose—"that's no way to come upon a man with a weak heart. You must have something heavy on your chest. Let's have it."

The girl courted.

"I ben listenin'!"

"The devil you say!" O'Meara smiled.

"Yes, sir. I heard what you said about that room on the top floor. You an' her—pointing toward Natalie—needn't be afraid. I ben up there. It ain't what you're afraid of."

"Come across! What is it?"

"Chicken-pox."

"I ben listenin'!"

"The devil you say!" O'Meara smiled.

"Yes, sir. I heard what you said about that room on the top floor. You an' her—pointing toward Natalie—needn't be afraid. I ben up there. It ain't what you're afraid of."

"Come across! What is it?"

"Chicken-pox."

CHAPTER XXIX
The Unnumbered Room's Secret.

An hour later a gray roadster drew up before One Pine Inn. Its driver, a thick-set man in blue serge, topped off by a rowdy black-and-white checker-board cap, stepped out and mounted the stairway to the porch.

"May I come in?" the checker-board cap made a gallant semi-circle and, as his eyes rested on a girl standing in the center of the group, "What's the trouble, sister? Anything I can do?"

Natalie Mallinson never could understand what it was that made her turn to this stranger and fling her troubles on his lavender-silk shirt. He told all that had happened, ending with the disappearance of Miss Merilda and the flight of Bill and the clerk.

"You've brought your troubles to the right doctor, sister," he said. "I'm O'Meara—Tim O'Meara—O'Meara's Detective Agency—my card."

The part of her story that seemed to interest O'Meara the most was Jones. And, after that, the unnumbered room on the top floor. He made her go over what she had told him again, interrupting constantly with questions.

"You and me are going to get on like a pair of shoes, sister," he confided. "Let's go out and talk to this Miss Pringle, and then we'll be after finding your aunt. I doubt me if the good lady's far from the home plate. She's—"

A sneeze, an explosive, hastily smothered sneeze.

O'Meara thrust an arm out the window beside which they had been sitting and drew into view a plump, red-cheeked young woman. Without a word he assisted her over the sill, all arms and scrambling, sturdy legs.

It was Sammy Todd's sister, a waitress.

"Young woman"—the detective wagged his forefinger under the snub nose—"that's no way to come upon a man with a weak heart. You must have something heavy on your chest. Let's have it."

The girl courted.

"I ben listenin'!"

"The devil you say!" O'Meara smiled.

THE GUMPS—PLEASANT DREAMS

age in height, with a thin, intellectual face and brown eyes, near-sighted without the glasses to which they were so evidently accustomed, was peering out from the vestibule of the Pullman. Jones fell back.

"You? Good God!"

Painfully, one foot dragging, the man hobbled down the steps.

"You seem surprised to see me here, but what of yourself?" he demanded. "How do you explain your presence?"

"All aboard!"—the conductor on the car ahead.

"Is you or isn't you?" inquired a dusky porter.

"Well," the clerk, his hand still on Bill's collar, looked at the man who had just jumped from the Pullman. "Now's your chance—decide!"

The man spread out his hands in token of defeat.

CHAPTER XXVI
Lucy's Story.

The mysterious unnumbered room was small. Lighted and aired by a meek silt in the wall, it contained an arm-chair, a chair, a wash-stand. On the side of the cot, her chin on her hands, her elbows on her knees, sat a girl. More dispirited than ill was the inward comment of the shrewd O'Meara.

A few adroit questions, a little sympathy, and the thin shoulders straightened, the eyes kindled. The resentment she had been harboring for days flared into speech.

She had come from Manchester in answer to an advertisement for waitresses. Three days after her arrival, she had begun to feel queer—spots all over her—furry little blisters that itched.

Miss Pringle, with the help of Tillie, had transferred her from the maid's quarters to the room on the top floor, where they usually kept the extra furniture. It was done at night, quietly, for fear the guests would hear about it and leave.

The clerk and Bill, the chauffeur, had taken turns going to Lakeport for medicines.

Just when she began to feel better, Miss Pringle received a letter telling about an epidemic of smallpox in Manchester. The four—Tillie, Bill, Miss Pringle, Jones—were scared stiff.

The clerk, all right—she hoped she did have smallpox.

The tedium of convalescence was relieved by spying on the guests from an upper window or by clandestine excursions down the stairs to find out what had happened since her illness.

The night of the storm, the room on the top floor became unbearable. The room leaked; a mouse gnawed something under her bed; the wind howled, and the music down-stairs bothered her. She could not sleep.

After every one had come up-stairs and she supposed the house closed for the night, footsteps in the lower hall had excited her curiosity—stealthy footsteps. The girl crept out of her room and half-way down the stairs.

A woman wearing a bright-red coat was in the lower hall. Something about this woman made the watcher more nervous than ever. She followed her to the door of the living-room. In there were two men—Jones, the clerk, and a small man with a black mustache. They talked a long time, she said. Finally, the girl admitted she had told Aunt Merilda that Bill had killed the princessman. And Miss Merilda had gone to the barn to find Bill.

CHAPTER XXV
At the Station.

The New York train thundered into Mink Harbor station as Jones raced down the cinder bed beside the track. A figure leaped for the Pullman.

"No you don't!"

With a burst of speed, the clerk reached the spot. His hand shot out; the figure came off the step with a jerk. It was Bill!

"Thought you'd get away, eh, and leave me to face the music? Some yarn you tried to stuff me with last night, you—"

The chauffeur tore free.

"Yarn?" he snarled. "Be damned to you! Look there!" He pointed to the party of the car.

A slender man, not above the average in height, with a thin, intellectual face and brown eyes, near-sighted without the glasses to which they were so evidently accustomed, was peering out from the vestibule of the Pullman. Jones fell back.

"You? Good God!"

Painfully, one foot dragging, the man hobbled down the steps.
